The Lindbergh Child.
Thought, Not Noise.
Bows and Arrows.

—BY ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NEWS CONCERNING the Lindbergh baby is more encouraging. There is nothing definite, but hopeful rumors are not denied. Those that should know seem convinced that the little boy is alive and well and that his parents have high hopes of his early recovery.

This will give comfort to millions of hearts, to mothers especially, all over the world.

THE RICH, if we have any left, grieved by the suggestion that three-quarters of all their income be taken from them in the way of taxation, might find comfort in reading some details of the French revolution in the Puy-de-Dome section.

A certain ardent revolutionist named Meyrand "had the audacity to suggest to the judges that he knew no law which made it necessary to condemn a citizen to death because he was rich." Il ne connaissait pas de loi qui ordonnat de condamner un citoyen a mort parce qu' il etait riche.

Meyrand was considered a good sans-culotte by revolutionists generally, but he was immediately put in jail because he objected to sentencing a citizen to death because he was rich.

We haven't reached that stage in the United States yet. So let the rich cheer up.

SEVERAL HUNDRED young Columbia students went on strike yesterday because the editor of the college paper was expelled. Fists and eggs flew. Young men and women carried signs,

"Strike for a free press."

"A liberal university."

One young gentleman carried this sign:

"Think out loud."

The important part is the thinking. The loudness is less important.

The difficulty is that there is a good deal of noise, not very much thinking.

THE AMERICAN Tobacco Company pays George Washington Hill a very substantial bonus and salary combined, in recognition of his extraordinary success in continuing to build up the business that his father built before him.

At the annual meeting of Mr. Hill's company yesterday, all expressed confidence in the work done by the president of the company, and well they might. Any business can afford to pay well a man who creates, in increased net profits, 20 times what he gets, to say nothing of adding a hundred millions to the value of a business. The best bargain in the world is exceptional ability, no matter what you pay for it.

Now, who can kill a buck, and who can kill a doe and who can kill a hart of grease 500 feet him fro?

Robin Hood, speaking in the old English ballad, goes on to say that Will Scarlet he killed a buck, and Midge he killed a doe, but Little John killed a hart of grease five hundred feet him fro.

Shooting with bow and arrow is coming back. Howard Hill, a young giant of Alabama, who makes the best bows and arrows produced in America, can draw a bow that would have stumped Will Scarlet, Midge and even Little John.

HOWARD SHOOTS rabbits, quail, deer, even fish, everything that he kills, with a bow and arrow. Glen Curtiss, the airman, as enthusiastic as Hill, but not quite as skilful, went bow and arrow shooting with him often and said it made shooting with a rifle seem tame.

Hill, who holds the long-distance record with a bow and arrow, 410 yards, draws a bow of more than 120 pounds resisting power. He says snakewood makes the best bows for the American climate. The British yew is too sensitive. His address is Box 14, Opalocka, Fla. You ought to see him shoot.

THE WAY to get business is to go after it. Ask the New Jersey Central and Pennsylvania railroads.

Both those railroads run excursions twice a week to seaside and other resorts outside of New York City, and have greatly increased their business. On a New Jersey Central train coming in from Barnegat, with excursion rates all along the way, yesterday morning for instance, the writer observed that a train usually carrying 60 to 80 passengers carried 600. Excursions to Point Pleasant on both railroads run in two sections and carry as many as 2,500.

It is better to carry 2,500 passengers at $1 than to carry 100 at $4.30.

'Honor Slaying' Jury Nearing Completion

EYEWITNESS TO HAWAII KILLING LACKING

Inability of Prosecution To Produce Spectator Seen as Aid to Defense

HONOLULU, T. H., April 7.—Probable inability of the prosecution to produce an eyewitness to the "honor slaying" of Joseph Kahahawai may prove an important point in the defense of the four Americans on trial here for his killing.

This possibility was indicated today as the "home stretch" stage was reached in the task of selecting a jury that will determine the fate of Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, American society matron; Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., and two enlisted men of the Navy, charged with second-degree murder.

PLANS REVEALED

Three days of questioning of talesmen have served to reveal glimpses of carefully guarded plans of both prosecution and defense.

The state has indicated it will fight to the last ditch against admission of details of the attack upon pretty Thalia Fortescue Massie, daughter of Mrs. Fortescue and wife of the grim-faced young naval officer.

Waylaid one night last September by five men as she walked near a dance club, Mrs. Massie was carried away and brutally beaten and attacked by her captors.

Kahahawai was arrested as the alleged leader of five men who were tried for the attack. A hung jury resulted. During the trial Mrs. Massie identified Kahahawai as the man who had broken her jaw.

Then came the kidnaping of Kahahawai from the steps of the "Hall of Chiefs" in which the present murder trial is under way, his death by shooting, and the arrest of Mrs. Fortescue and Lieut.

MRS. PAULETTA PERILED IN FIRE

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., April 7.—(AP.)—Fire in an adjoining garage threatened the lives of Mrs. Frank Pauletta, of Coverdale, Pa., her five children and other relatives early this morning at the apartment of her brother-in-law, Joseph Cavalle.

Mrs. Pauletta, whose husband is awaiting execution April 22 in the state prison at Moundsville for a murder committed here 18 years ago, is here aiding in the fight to save her husband from the gallows.

Aroused, probably by the smoke, 2-year-old Frank began crying. His wails awakened Cavalle, who cried out to Bruno Yank, husband of a daughter of Pauletta, and the two men roused their kinfolk, most of them affected by dense smoke.

Mrs. Paulette yesterday appeared with Judge M. A. Musmanno, of Pittsburgh, in an appeal to Gov. Conley for clemency for Paulette.

Jennie Dolly Wins $200,000 in Gamble

NICE, France, April 7.—(INS.)—Jennie Dolly, one of the Dolly sisters, swore off gambling April 1, but today, one week later, was decidedly "in the luck" for having changed her mind.

In addition to winning 5,000,000 francs (about $200,000) at one sitting at a gaming table here, the stage star recovered a $4,000 pearl necklace she recently lost. The necklace was found by her chauffeur.

Gloria's Daughter 'Mike' Temporarily

LONDON, April 7.—(AP.)—Gloria Swanson and her husband, Michael Farmer, wanted a boy instead of a girl, Farmer revealed today, and Gloria had planned to call the boy "Mike."

They were "just a little bit disappointed," he said, when a girl was born the night before last. Provisionally, he said, they have been calling the girl "Mike."

Knife Fighters

MICHAEL FERRARO, 21

JAMES GORDON, 33

MARTIN CONNELLY, 29

Irish Want Dublin To Be Parley Scene

LONDON, April 7.—(AP.)—Usually well-informed circles said today the government of the Irish Free State will insist that any conference between itself and Great Britain on the oath of allegiance and the land annuities must be held in Dublin.

TWO SLAIN IN BATTLE AT 'PEN' HERE

Pair Stabbed to Death by Fellow Convict, Revengeful Over 60 Days in 'Solitary'

A quarrel among three prisoners in Western Penitentiary, which brought one of them solitary confinement for two months, resulted in the fatal stabbing of the other two in the prison yard early today, Coroner's office officials reported this afternoon.

The dead men were Martin Connelly, 29, and Michael Ferraro, 21, the latter one of the nation's first "thrill murderers," both of Pittsburgh and both unmarried.

Their assailant, James Gordon, 33, of Philadelphia, serving sentences totaling 84 to 119 years for a long list of crimes, is in the prison hospital, suffering from two stab wounds, with a heavy guard at his bedside.

PLACED IN 'SOLITARY'

According to James L. Davidson, chief clerk in the Coroner's office, an investigation this afternoon disclosed that the three men were involved in a quarrel two months ago, and Gordon, upon whom the blame was placed, ordered in "solitary" for 60 days.

Gordon was released from his confinement this morning, Davidson said, and his first act was one of revenge.

When the 900 prisoners were turned into the penitentiary for their 9 a. m. exercise period, Gordon lurked behind the icehouse.

Ferraro and Connelly, accompanied by two other men, passed by.

Guards, only 50 yards away, said Gordon leaped upon the pair. They saw his arm flash.

STABBED IN HEART

Ferraro crumpled to the ground with a knife wound through his heart. Connelly collapsed with slashes in his abdomen and chest. He died in the prison hospital 10 minutes later.

Guard William Kennedy rushed to the scene and wrested the knife, fashioned from a piece of steel, which had been stolen from the prison auto license factory, from Gordon's hand.

The slayer offered no resistance. He was bleeding from stab wounds on the chest and right wrist.

At the prison hospital, Gordon was sullen and refused to answer interrogations as to whether his own wounds were self-inflicted.

A search for other knives, which prison officials feared the slain men might have carried, late this afternoon had been fruitless.

900 SEE KILLING

More than 900 prisoners were taking their morning exercise in the yard when the killings occurred.

There was no disorder as the guards rushed in and swept Gordon away to the hospital. The rest of the convicts filed quietly out of the yard as officials announced the exercise period had been terminated.

Coroner's officials also disclosed that Gordon was known as a troublesome prisoner and had quarreled with many of the other convicts, being particularly bitter in his enmity toward the two slain men.

His crimes include an escape from the Eastern Penitentiary.

LINDY AIDES ALERT FOR QUICK MOVE

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

TRENTON, N. J., April 7.—An atmosphere of tense expectancy, due to rumors that important developments were pending in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, prevailed at the New Jersey state police headquarters here today.

This tension was heightened when the official "news bulletin" issued by Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the state police, did not make its appearance until 11:30 a. m., an hour and one-half after the customary time.

However, the statement had nothing in it regarding any significant developments of the past 24 hours. Whether Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is in contact with the kidnapers of his son was not discussed.

CITES LINDY REQUEST

At Norfolk, however, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, acting as spokesman for the three prominent Norfolk citizens who are negotiating for the return of the Lindbergh baby, today said that they were "holding themselves in readiness" for any eventuality that might develop.

He said that Col. Lindbergh has renewed his request that Curtis, the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock and he continue their efforts to effect the return of the child.

Burrage declared he could not indicate if there had been any further attempts to definitely es-

HAWKS HURT IN TAKEOFF CRASH

GRAFTON, Mass., April 7.—(INS.)—Capt. Frank M. Hawks was seriously injured today when his Travelair "mystery plane" overturned as it lurched from the soggy runway of the local airport and struck a rocky path. He had a narrow escape from death.

The speed king of the airways had the presence of mind to cut the ignition switch of the motor and the plane did not catch fire. This probably saved him from death in a flaming plane.

Hawks was pulled from the wreckage, unable to speak from a fractured jaw bone and face lacerations.

Hawks was roaring down the soggy runway at a speed estimated at 100 miles an hour when a wheel of the plane he had flown in many parts of North America and Europe struck the rocky ledge and overturned.

The airman, alone in the plane, was hurled into the air when his cockpit safety belt broke. He rolled across the field. The airplane bounding after him, fell on top of him.

Driver Injured as Two Trucks Crash

One man was injured when two trucks collided on Beaver road, between Haysville and Glenfield, this morning. Edward Baranowski, 30, of Ambridge, driver of a bakery truck, is said to have crashed into the truck driven by Ward Eastabrook, of Chicago, en route from Chicago. Baranowski was taken to Valley Hospital at Sewickley.

Schooley, Burned in Home Here, Abed in Detroit

DETROIT, Mich., April 7.—Roy D. Schooley, indicted former City Treasurer of Pittsburgh, is confined to his bed in the Statler Hotel here suffering from burns, it was learned today.

He told a representative of the Sun-Telegraph that he received the burns in his home in Meripoe street, Pittsburgh, last Thursday when, while standing in his pajamas and lounging robe in front of a grate fire, the flames set fire to his clothing.

Schooley was accompanied here by Arthur G. Burgoyne, his former assistant in the City Treasurer's office, with whom he was indicted months ago.

Schooley said that, not believing the burns serious, he and Burgoyne left Pittsburgh early last Saturday to drive to Mt. Clemens, Mich., where Schooley planned to take the baths.

When they reached Detroit, Schooley said, the burns were causing intense pain. He believed the ride had irritated his condition.

He went immediately to the Statler Hotel, where he has been bedfast since. He has abandoned plans to visit Mt. Clemens, and expects to return to Pittsburgh in four or five days.

TALBOT AID BILL RULED LEGAL

Will the Senate Do Its Duty to the Public?

WHAT WILL THE Republican Senate do with the illegitimate tax measure which has been delivered by the House and which is now lying like an unhappy foundling upon the doorstep of the Senate?

Will the Republican Senate adopt the Congressional child of the House's Communist-Democrats and Bolshevist-Republicans in sinful coalition; or will the Senate refuse to father the nameless infant?

Let us hope that the Republican Senate will repudiate the "soak the rich and react on the poor" provisions of the mongrel House measure.

But this is hardly to be expected when we recall that it was a Republican Congressman, Mr. Swing, of California, who originated and gave his name to the Bolshevist amendment which imposed a sixty-five per cent federal surtax upon some individual incomes.

Let us hope that the Republican Senate will judiciously substitute an equitable and adequate sales tax for the discriminatory and confiscatory provisions of the House measure.

But this seems somewhat unlikely in view of the fact that it was a Republican Congressman, Mr. LaGuardia, of New York, who was the ringleader in the House stampede against orderly taxation in general and against the sales tax in particular.

LET US HOPE that the Republican Senate will be wise enough and honest enough to favor excise taxes on alchoholic beverages and to devote to the needs of government the billion dollars a year which now go to supporting the great American industries of bootlegging, hi-jacking, assassination and official corruption.

But it is difficult to believe that any program of sound finance, genuine temperance and sincere consideration for the public welfare is likely to

Family-Help-Family Plan to Save 28,000 Homes Launched Here

1,000 Workers Begin Drive to Put Over Harris Program.

The battle to save 28,000 families in Allegheny County from starvation by means of the family-help-family plan, organized by Senator Frank J. Harris, was launched today with the warning that unless everyone with means contributes to the limit, thousands of penniless families will have lost their last hope.

Approximately 1,000 volunteer workers directed by William B. Rodgers and Taylor Allderdice began their task of raising at least $2,800,000, or enough to maintain the 28,000 destitute families for three months.

FUREY FIRST DONOR

William M. Furey was the first contributor to the plan, having given his pledge to Allderdice, Mr. Furey, general agent of the Berkshire Life Insurance Company, told Mr. Allderdice:

"The interest in the plan is splendid. Why, last night a friend called me from Atlantic

Printing of Ballots Halted by Omission

The County Commissioners this afternoon received a telegram from Richard J. Beamish, secretary of the Commonwealth, directing them to stop all printing of ballots for the coming primaries until further notice. His request followed manadamus proceedings in the Dauphin County Court by a delegate-at-large whose name failed to appear on the ballot, and affects every county in the state, the commissioners were informed.

State Supreme Court Holds Appropriation Voted by Assembly Constitutional

By E. L. RAWLEY
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, April 7. Pennsylvania's highest tribunal today placed the stamp of constitutional approval on the bitterly-contested Talbot act, which appropriates $10,000,000 from the general fund to the state's poor districts.

In a formal decision handed down here today, the high court found that the act, rushed through to a stormy passage at the recent special session of the Legislature, was consistent with the Pennsylvania Constitution.

The opinion held that no act of the Assembly should be held unconstitutional "unless it is clearly, strongly and imperatively prohibited."

However, the justices expressed vigorous opposition against sustaining any person who is too lazy to work, or has work to do.

The decision makes distribution of the $10,000,000 fund to the poor districts for the alleviation of distress a routine matter to be carried through by the Department of Welfare.

OPPOSED BY PINCHOT

The bill met with stormy opposition by Gov. Gifford Pinchot on the ground that it is "class legislation"—prohibited by the State Constitution.

It was ruled unconstitutional by Attorney General William A. Schnader. In a test case, however, its constitutionality was upheld by the Dauphin County Court. Schnader appealed, resulting in today's decision by the high court.

The opinion was not unanimous. The judges were divided 4 to 3, with Justices Simpson, Linn and Drew dissenting.

According to the terms of the act, the money will be divided according to the ratio of population in each of the 67 counties of the state, the various amounts going to the poor districts, with the exception of Philadelphia County, which has no poor board. In that county money will be allotted to the Department of Welfare.

PINCHOT SILENT

FRANKLIN, Pa., April 7.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot said today that he will make no comment on the Supreme Court's action in holding the Talbot act constitutional until he has an opportunity to read the decision.

County Gets $1,729,258 Under Talbot Bill

Allegheny County will receive $1,729,258 for relief purposes under the Talbot bill, of which $886,000 will be distributed among residents of Pittsburgh, in the same manner as appropriations by Council.

Apportionments to nearby counties, on basis of population, follow: Armstrong, $71,860; Beaver, $171,640; Butler, $82,993; Fayette, $198,444; Lawrence, $186,466; Washington, $213,291; Westmoreland, $281,386.

'TREATY-NAVY' BACKERS SCORE HOOVER 'ECONOMY EXCUSE'

LEAGUE RENEWS DISPUTE WITH PRESIDENT

Gardiner Marshals Figures To Riddle Claims Set Forth by Administration

Universal Service

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The "honesty" of President Hoover in opposing the Vinson bill for a treaty Navy was challenged by the Navy League of the United States, in a statement published today.

Over the signature of William Howard Gardiner, its president, the league marshaled an array of figures to riddle the economy excuse set up by the administration for its failure to provide an adequate sea force.

Gardiner recently exploded a bombshell by charging President Hoover had displayed abysmal ignorance of the naval situation—an assertion which resulted in the President virtually demanding an apology and appointing a commission to absolve him of the charge. No apology was forthcoming, however.

LABOR FUND BLOCKED

Renewing the warfare today, Gardiner said that while Europe smouldered and Asia ablaze the President's economy para forced the House to turn away from favorable action on the Vinson bill which provided for an expenditure of only $18,000,000 for the fiscal year '33. Then citing congressional relief appropriations totaling a billion dollars that followed he added:

"It hardly seems honest to allege that the United States cannot afford to spend $18,000,000 in the coming fiscal year to begin a naval replacement program—especially when we recall that, according to recent statements by the Secretary of the Navy and by its chief constructor, about 90 per cent of the expenditure of building a naval vessel goes to labor."

NAVY SLIGHTED

Gardiner showed that since 1913, ordinary expenditures of the government for non-military activities have increased 834 per cent, while the increase for military expenditures has been only 270 per cent. Meanwhile the Navy's percentage of total expenditures has dropped from 17.8 per cent to 7.4 per cent, he pointed out, adding:

"Thus the conclusion seems inescapable that in searching for the causes of the evident increase in the 'crushing burden of taxation,' we must look elsewhere than to the armaments scape-goat that Mr. Hoover and the pacifists parade."

STUDENT DEATH BLAME PLACED

EASTON, Pa., April 7.—(AP)—The deaths of Francis Trimble of Ben Avon, Pa., and William H. Zink, of Steubenville, O., Princeton students killed in an automobile crash near here March 21, were blamed on the negligence of Russell Saylor, 22, Easton R. D. 2, by a coroner's jury today.

Although the jury placed no blame on Burton C. Dunn, 20, Princeton sophomore of Pittsburgh, the driver of the other car, assistant district attorneys announced that both Dunn and Saylor will be prosecuted on involuntary manslaughter charges.

E. Bruce Hill and Norton V. V. Coyle, of Pittsburgh, Princeton students, who were injured in the crash, are still in the hospital.

Navy Building Urged As Aid to Jobless

Constructions of warships as a means of relieving unemployment was advocated by Commander C. M. James in charge of Navy recruiting here in a talk before the Maj. John Baird Allegheny Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars at its weekly luncheon in the Nixon restaurant.

James declared that the building of one battleship meant employment of 10,000 men at $5 a day for 2.5-10 years.

Son of Ex-Kaiser Socialist Candidate

BERLIN, April 7.—(AP)—August Wilhelm, fourth son of the former Kaiser, is one of 15 official candidates of the National Socialist party for election to the Prussian Diet on April 24, Adolf Hitler, leader of the party, yesterday approved the list in which the former Prince is included with a bank clerk, a teacher, metal workers and other commoners.

Tiny Baby in Doll Clothes Has Audiences Barred

KANSAS CITY, April 7.—(INS)—A "no admission" rule went into effect today at the home of baby St. John, America's tiniest bundle of humanity.

The infant, weighing only one pound and measuring less than 14 inches from heel to scalp, slept blissfully in its improvised crib of a small packing box, while the throngs who flocked to view the little mite were barred from entry.

The decree issued by the attending physician to the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William St. John, 18 and 17 years old respectively, was:

No more audiences.

The baby, declared to be the smallest ever born in this country, must have plenty of rest and must be protected from such excitement as filled the St. John household immediately after he was born.

Although he is physically sound and well proportioned, the child's condition is still delicate, the doctor explained.

A maze of hot water bags surrounds the infant to maintain a prescribed temperature of 82 degrees. Baby St. John has his meals regularly, of course, but they consist of drops of water from a medicine dropper. With a little further development, his doctor said, drops of milk will be substituted for the water.

FAMILY RELIEF DRIVE OPENS

City to tell me his firm would care for 10 families and that he himself would care for 10 additional families for three months."

With stark hunger their enemy, the relief workers were determined to reach their objective within 10 days.

Sounding the keynote of the campaign at a breakfast this morning in William Penn Hotel, attended by a majority of the workers, Senator Harris said:

"We must do something immediately until more public funds may be available to relieve the suffering which is imminent."

DANGER NEAR

He pointed out that the $200,000 recently raised by the County Poor Board and a like amount appropriated by the city would barely last until the first of May.

During the next 10 days every family with employed members will be asked to give something toward the support of one of the unfortunate families.

William B. Rodgers will lead his 250 workers in a canvass of 600 manufacturing plants in the county. Other workers under direction of Taylor Allderdice will canvass the cities, boroughs and townships.

Three thousand individuals according to a statement issued late yesterday by sponsors of the family-help-family plan, will decide whether or not 160,000 of their neighbors shall continue to have enough food to sustain life.

LARGE GIFT APPEAL

The statement set forth:

"It has been clearly demonstrated that there are in Allegheny County today not more than 2,000 individuals or corporations who can give much more than $100 during the next few months to provide a bare existence for the penniless and jobless. There probably are not more than five or six thousand who can give even $100 apiece.

"Every one of those then, who decides not to take a great part of the responsibility, every one who, possessing that capacity, gives only enough for five or 10 families, deprives a large part of the remaindr of their only opportunity for support."

The money collected in the campaign will be turned over to the Allegheny County Emergency Association which will administer its distribution through the seven relief organizations through which it operates.

Senator Harris reminded the workers today that:

Hundreds of Women Aid In Relief Program

Hundreds of women of all walks of life have answered the call of Mrs. Franklin C. Irish to join the women's army being mobilized in the Harris Family-Help-Family Plan campaign.

The opening meeting will be held in the English Room of the Fort Pitt hotel tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Governors of officers of every women's organization in Allegheny County have been invited to attend.

Commenting on the emergency and how the women plan to meet it, Mrs. Irish said:

"We must submerge ourselves now just as women did during the World War. This is a civic emergency just as serious—it is a fight against hunger and disease.

"Invitations to attend the opening meeting tomorrow afternoon at the Fort Pitt Hotel have been extended by mail or telephone to the governing officers of every women's organization in Allegheny County. If, through delay in the mails or discrepancies in addresses, any club has not been reached, let this public plea suffice. We want every organization represented. The emergency is too great to permit the possibility of any one club not being represented."

Mrs. Karl Kaufmann is vice chairman of the Women's Battalion. On the executive committee are Mrs. Harry J. Miller, Mrs. William B. Schiller, Mrs. Francis A. Keating, Mrs. Albert C. Lehman, Mrs. William Frew, Mrs. Saul, Mrs. Joseph Levine and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith.

2 CONVICTS DIE IN PEN BATTLE

January 4, 1925, robbery, being armed with an offensive weapon and entering with intent to rob. After his escape, he was recaptured in California and placed in the Western Penitentiary September 24, 1926.

SERVING 10-20 YEARS

Connelly, who lived at 1319 Watson street at the time of his arrest, was serving from 10 to 20 years for entering buildings and attempting to commit a felony.

Ferraro was a life prisoner, convicted of first-degree murder in one of the first "thrill" killings on record.

He and two other youths were convicted in 1928 of fatally stabbing and shooting Edward Flynn, 65, night watchman at the Homeopathic Hospital when they attempted to hold him up at Center avenue and Graham street on the night of September 4, 1927.

DREW LIFE TERMS

Ferraro, who in 1927 lived at 6615 Shetland avenue, and his two accomplices received life sentences for their parts in the killing of the aged hospital watchman after they entered pleas of guilty not only to the murder, but to 18 to 20 robberies.

All of the crimes they said were committed for the "thrill."

The two other members of the gang were Henry Conalanza, then 18, of 646 Chianti street, and Lloyd Moore, then 19, of Wilkinsburg.

Joseph Ferraro, then 22, a brother of Michael, was sentenced to serve from two to four years on the robbery charges, after testimony at the murder trial revealed he had been found drunk in the car when Flynn was murdered.

PUNITIVE TAXES OPPOSED AT HEARING

New York Board of Trade Chief Urges Sales Levy; Democrats in Parley

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Support of the program of Secretary Mills for elimination of "punitive business taxes" from the House tax bill was given before the Senate Finance Committee today by M. L. Seidman, representing the New York Board of Trade.

He advocated elimination of the House levy on bond transfers, asked reduction of the stock transfer levy from one-fourth of 1 per cent to 4 cents per share, and proposed a cut in the maximum inheritance tax from 45 per cent to 25 per cent.

SMOOT QUESTION

Chairman Smoot demanded:

"How would you raise the money?"

Seidman replied:

"Manufacturers' sales tax as a last resort. Our board favors that form of taxation. We also believe government expenditures should be cut. Salaries have been cut from 10 to 40 per cent in industry."

Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, interposed:

"Well, they are not going to be cut here."

Seidman assailed particularly the House provision removing the allowance for deduction of security losses from taxable income. He argued:

SECURITY PRICES SHRINK

"Those who listened to promises of prosperity being just around the corner, or who, from patriotic motives, refrained from aggravating an already aggravated situation in the security markets, are now confronted not only with an additional shrinkage in their security values but with a further loss of the income tax reduction given to others who did sell before 1932."

Meanwhile, Senate Democrats sought unsuccessfully today to agree that new taxes on imports should be barred from the billion-dollar revenue bill.

In a party conference held while the finance committee hearing was under way, the Democrats expressed themselves in favor of prompt enactment of the measure to balance the budget and said they were willing to work on it on a non-partisan basis.

The conference did not discuss the general sales tax.

U. S. Running Out Of Taxable Items

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(INS)—Secretary of the Treasury Mills today admitted the Treasury Department had run out of new things to tax.

Asked whether the Treasury was working on any new source of taxation, Mills replied:

"I cannot think of anything new to tax. That tax on wort was the last trick in our bag."

A tax of five cents a gallon on wort was included in the bill passed by the House. Wort is used in making home-brew.

2 BANKS PUSH OPENING PLANS

Plans for the re-opening of two closed Pittsburgh banks, the Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company and the Homewood Peoples Bank, were being pushed today.

Conditions for the re-opening of the Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Company, Butler street and Penn avenue, will be presented to the directors at a meeting tonight and to the stockholders and depositors Monday or Tuesday night in Woolslair School, according to Harry T. Aufderheide, former vice president. Meanwhile checks for the first 10 per cent dividend to depositors were being mailed today.

James C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company, will be the speaker at a mass meeting in the Homewood Peoples Bank, 618 North Homewood avenue, next Thursday, when plans will be discussed for the opening of that institution. Up to today 400 subscribers had agreed to purchase 1,100 of the 2,000 shares of stock needed to open the bank.

AIDES OF LINDY SET TO ACT

tablish that the baby for which they were dealing was the Lindbergh baby. He would say nothing on that subject. He was asked:

"Can you disclose Col. Lindbergh's reaction to the present phase of the case?"

SECRECY MAINTAINED

The admiral said there were "no developments" since the return yesterday of Curtis, Norfolk shipbuilder, from his mysterious four-day trip. Curtis, upon his return, stated he had made contact and was informed by his "contact" that little Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was well.

Asked by newspapermen this morning what steps are being taken to facilitate the recovery of the baby, Admiral Burrage was non-committal.

Curtis, seen at his office by an International News Service reporter, had no comment to make.

The four-day mysterious trip taken by Curtis placed matters on a firmer basis than heretofore, apparently, but movements were shackled by secrecy that entirely cloaked the exact status of the negotiations.

HUNT COUPLE IN BOSTON

The possibility that a man, woman and baby, seen coming ashore from a motor launch at Waquoit, by Jonathan L. Jones, Cape Cod fisherman, hurried to Boston in an automobile observed parked near the beach, caused state police to turn to that city today.

Police searched in Mashpee and Falmouth without finding any clues except pootprints on isolated Waquoit Beach thought to be those of a woman.

Meanwhile, Coast Guard vessels kept a vigilant watch off No Man's Land Island, the scene of the landing on Sunday afternoon by Col. Lindbergh in his airplane search for his kidnaped baby.

The mail boat Alert, from New Bedford to the Elizabeth Islands, in Vineyard Sound, reported sighting a 28-foot boat answering the description of the Nellie, the supposed contact ship in the Lindbergh case negotiations, but the craft sped away in the direction of Newport, R. I.

GOVERNOR ADDS HOPE

Gov. A. Harry Moore injected a confident note into the case when, after receiving reports on the progress of the kidnap investigation from Schwarzkopf, whom he called into conference, he announced:

"Col. Schwarzkopf conferred with me and reported in detail on the general situation including police activities and progress. He told me the situation remains about the same as it has been for several days.

"It is my sincere hope that the baby is alive and well. That he is alive and well is also my sincere belief.

"However, I have no definite knowledge that he is."

WORDING CHANGED

The wording of this statement formally given out by the Governor differed from one he made late yesterday, in which he said the baby "is alive and well and will be returned."

He qualified this a little later by saying he "hoped the baby was alive and well," and then issued the final statement.

MASSIE JURY APPROACHING COMPLETION

EYEWITNESSES LACKING

Witnesses called by the state in the grand jury investigation included witnesses of the kidnaping, neighbors of Mrs. Fortescue and arresting officers. But so far as is known no eyewitnesses to the slaying has been produced. The "inside story" of his death remains untold.

A theory has been advanced in some quarters here that the young half-caste was accidentally shot to death while his captors sought to force a confession of participation in the attack from his unwilling lips. These observers have expressed belief that one of the four defendants might take the stand, relate this version of the killing and absolve all of the other defendants of blame. But no confirmation of this has come from defense quarters.

In this connection it was learned today the state expects a plea of "emotional insanity" to be offered in behalf of one of the defendants.

Prosecutor John C. Kelley said today he had learned on the highest authority two prominent psychiatrists were coming from the mainland to assist in the defense.

DARROW KEEPS SILENT

Clarence Darrow, gaunt, gray-haired veteran of scores of famous mainland legal battles, refused to deny or confirm this report. He said:

"At the proper time the defense plans will be disclosed in their entirety, but right now the pertinent thing is getting an impartial jury. We are devoting our entire energies to that end."

Close observers believed the alienists, if called, would testify in behalf of either Mrs. Fortescue or Lieut. Massie.

Darrow, while guarding his plans closely, has stressed two lines of questioning in examining prospective jurors.

In the first he has insisted that the details of the Ala Moana attack on Mrs. Massie have an important part to play in the trial.

This has been interpreted as meaning that the "unwritten law" will be invoked. The death of Kahahawai would be attributed to "justifiable homicide" under this line of defense, it was believed.

WIFE MAY TESTIFY

It has been conjectured in this connection that Mrs. Massie might be called to the witness stand as a defense witness to save her mother and husband by baring anew the horrible details of her experience and again identifying Kahahawai as her assailant.

Today's session was to mark the fourth of the trial devoted to selection of a jury. Throughout the legal maneuvering in connection with choice of the jury it has been apparent that the state leaned toward "12 men, good and true" predominantly of Hawaiian and Oriental ancestry.

On the other hand the defense has striven to place on the jury as many men of the Caucasian race as possible.

Both sides have denied any "racial prejudice."

The defense had a one-man advantage prior to opening of court today. Seven white men were seated temporarily and five of Hawaiian and Oriental ancestry.

Hawaii's Governor Opposes 'Division of Authority'

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Gov. Lawrence M. Judd, of Hawaii, today communicated to Secretary Wilbur vigorous opposition to recommendations of Assistant Attorney General Richardson, terming them "a confiscation by Congress of some of our most treasured rights of self-government."

Judd said that "to transfer to Washington the appointment of the territorial attorney general and police head would result in divided authority between the Governor and these officers, with a resultant loss and not gain in efficiency and no centralized responsibility."

Secretary Wilbur made Judd's telegram public without comment. He said yesterday, however, that the Richardson report had shown "a high degree of law observance and capacity for self-government" in Hawaii.

Judd said the relations with the Army and Navy in Honolulu were satisfactory, and that the report as a whole revealed the city and the islands to be as clean and normal as any mainland community.

PINCHOT HOLDS P. S. C. PROBE VICTORY IN RATE WAR

ACTION YEARS OVERDUE, SAYS GOVERNOR

Vote for Inquiry on Utility Charges Comes as Towns Plan Boycotts on Lights

HARRISBURG, April 7.—(AP.)—As the Public Service Commission prepared today to investigate electric rates throughout Pennsylvania, with special attention to the charges levied on domestic current consumers, Gov. Gifford Pinchot termed the Commission's decision "a real triumph for us who have been demanding justice for the people."

The governor made his statement in New Castle, where he was a speaker today, campaigning for candidates for the State Legislature, who have indorsed his fight against public utility rates and practices.

The resolution ordering the inquiry was adopted unanimously yesterday while the governor, in his speaking tour, was renewing his charges that rates were too high and while three western Pennsylvania communities threatened partial boycotts in negotiations with utility companies. Informed today of the commission's action, Gov. Pinchot said:

"While I regret deeply that Judge George W. Woodruff's motion requiring electric utilities to show cause why they should not reduce their rates to 5 cents was defeated, I am gratified that his action resulted in passing of a motion to investigate the whole question.

"This is what the Public Service Commission should have done years ago. It is a real triumph for us who have been demanding justice for the people. We may yet compel the commission to do the work for which it was created."

SEEN AS COMPROMISE

Adoption of the investigation resolution was regarded in some quarters as a compromise. It followe a deadlock over Commissioner Woodruff's resolution to set a maximum domestic rate and to standardize the companies' schedules. This resolution had been defeated previously, January 13, by the same 3-to-3 vote.

The inquiry will be conducted by Commissioner Samuel Walker, who proposed it, and Woodruff. The commission then will decide what action to take. The resolution indicated the commission would seek voluntary adjustments.

Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown, and borough officials of Punxsutawney threatened to shut off the street lights last night if the Associated Gas and Electric Company refused to reduce its charges, but the action was deferred pending new negotiations.

At Sayre, the Borough Council threatened to turn off the lights April 20 unless the electric company agrees to a two-year contract instead of a five-year agreement.

'Pittsburgh Hymie' Awaits New Trial

CLEVELAN, April 7.—(INS.)—Celebrating his 29th birthday anniversary by passing around cigars to his fellow-prisoners, Hyman (Pittsburgh Hymie) Martin today awaited the start of his second trial for the murder of former Councilman William E. Potter.

Fate smiled upon Martin yesterday by giving him a birthday present in the form of a decision of the State Supreme Court refusing to review a ruling of the Appeals Court, which granted him a new trial. He is now serving a life sentence.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP.)—A handful of pink and white buds today signalized the advent of Washington's annual cherry blossom season.

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 7.—(AP.)—Privates Dutra, Moffat and Dewitt, members of the state police night patrol, saved the lives of D. J. Hummell, his wife and five small children when they were trapped in their burning home in North Huntingdon Township early today.

Attracted by flames, the police went to the Hummel home and found the seven people huddled together in a small room on the second floor, ready to jump.

FIRE ROUTS 100 Y.W.C.A. GIRLS

Meanwhile, the girls in the dorms were awakened and stood by in readiness to flee in event the fire gained major proportions.

Lloyd George Denies He Will Quit House

CHURT, Surrey, England, April 7.—(INS.)—David Lloyd George, Britain's war-time premier, today characterized as "perfectly ridiculous" a report current in London Parliamentary circles that he planned to retire from the House of Commons.

WARSHIP HINTED EN ROUTE TO ST. JOHN'S

Naval Action Reported in London; Premier Refuses To Quit, Outbreak Feared

International News Service.

LONDON, April 7.—The Evening Standard declared today that at the request of the Governor of Newfoundland, a British warship had been ordered to St. John's.

The Governor, the Standard said, feared further trouble following the rioting in which Sir Richard Squires, Newfoundland premier, was attacked.

The admiralty declined to comment on the Standard statement.

ROYAL PROBE PLANNED

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 7.—(AP.)—Sir Richard Squires announced today that he had "absolutely no intention whatever of tendering his resignation" as Prime Minister of Newfoundland.

The Prime Minister's statement set at rest rumors that have circulated more or less intermittently since a howling mob Tuesday night sought to throw him into the harbor.

Political circles expect him to ask for a dissolution of Parliament and a Dominion election.

The King's Governor, Sir John Middleton, announced that a rival commission would be appointed as soon as possible to inquire into "certain occurrences at the Colonial Building."

The commission would have full power to force the attendance of witnesses and to compel them to give evidence regarding the riots which broke up yesterday's session of the Legislature and forced Squires to flee into hiding.

FEAR NEW VIOLENCE

Squires was in hiding from an angry populace clamoring for his resignation, while 850 war veterans and civilians maintained order throughout the city in place of a demoralized police force.

After a flash appearance late yesterday as he ran up the steps of the Colonial Building and into his office, the Premier disappeared. He had come out of hiding from the home of one of the men who saved him from violence in Tuesday night's unemployment rioting, in which the House of Assembly was stormed and wrecked.

The threat of further outbreaks of violence still was great.

"Flier" patrols have been organized under former World War officers, while 200 civilians, in addition to the regular emergency force, have been signed to be ready as reinforcements if necessary to maintain order.

A heavy rain aided greatly yesterday in restoring order after many clashes occurred throughout the city. Serious trouble threatened as an eager group, pleased with their success in looting a government branch liquor shop Tuesday night, attempted to raid the main government liquor depot.

BALK RUM RAID

After obtaining a telephone pole they proceeded to ram in the locked doors, but finally were prevented by effective action on the part of the veterans, who used both speech and force.

Formation of a coalition government was expected to be the outcome of the present crisis, with F. C. Alderdice, present opposition leader, as the new premier.

The riots were a culmination of months of unrest from unemployment and national financial difficulties, and the thousands of unemployed in the city kept the situation tense as they remained determined in their demand for a new government.

COUNTY'S AUDIT SCORES FEES TO CHRISTY

$83,000 Yearly Commission Held Excessive; New Plan For Penalties Proposed

Branding excessive the $83,000 yearly net commission received by former County Delinquent Tax Collector Walter J. Christy, Main & Co., auditors, today recommended abolition of the collectorship as a fee office and substitution of a graduated penalty for the present 10 per cent.

In their fourth report to the County Commissioners, the auditors revealed that the county had lost $10,000 in revenue through failure of certain depositories to pay interest on delinquent tax money during the years 1928 to 1931 while Christy was delinquent tax collector.

Improper accountings were made by three deputy collectors, the audit stated.

According to the auditors' figures, commissions of Christy's office for the four years totaled $487,104 and his net fees amounted to $331,563.

FLIGHT WINNER WRITES OF FUN IN DETROIT

Daub Quotes Gen. Mitchell, Tells of Seeing Other Air Leaders; Visits Ford Plants

DETROIT, April 7.—John J. Daub, Jr., winner of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph aviation contest, was to see automobiles and airplanes being made at factories of the Ford Motor Company today. He was then to visit once more the National Aircraft Show. He will be present tonight at a dinner given by the aeronautical division of the Society of Automotive Engineers, where he will meet Maj. James D. Doolittle, famous flier, who is to be presented with one of the Bendix trophies.

By JOHN J. DAUB, Jr.

Brig. Gen. William Mitchell said to me:

"You ought to get a lot out of this show. I wish every boy interested in aviation could be here."

These words of Gen. Mitchell struck home to me as I viewed yesterday the multitude of sights at the National Aircraft show here. I was introduced to the General following my arrival here from Pittsburgh Tuesday as winner of the aviation contest conducted by the Sun-Telegraph and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

At every hour of the day it seemed to me, I am meeting some well-known figure in the aviation industry. Capt. Frank Hawks' winning smile is still fresh in my memory. The famous cross-country speed demon is a fine fellow. He heartily approves of this aviation contest held by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and 11 of the Hearst newspapers.

YANCEY TELLS EXPLOITS

Capt. Lewis A. Yancey, noted trans-Atlantic flier, described to me and the other contest winners some of his adventures on his recent autogiro flight over the Mayan ruins of Yucatan.

I saw Guiseppe Bellanca, builder of six of the airplanes which have spanned the Atlantic. It was one of his planes that Walter Lees, also at the show, told me he used to break the world's endurance record for a non-refueling airplane flight. At a meeting last night I heard Harold Gatty explain some new wrinkles in airplane navigation.

You remember Gatty and Wiley Post performed a world-girdling flight a short time ago.

I almost forgot to mention that I listened to Charles S. "Casey" Jones, the veteran pilot, relate some of the difficulties of flying in the early days.

BUSY EVERY MINUTE

I have been busy every minute since I arrived. Tuesday we boys were taken for a sightseeing tour of the city. The trip was nearly over when we heard a thunderous roar overhead. Suddenly 80 fast Army planes swooped down out of a cloud right over my head. Boy, what a thrill!

It was the first pursuit squadron from Selfridge Field, Mich. Diving, twisting and performing every maneuver of which a staunch ship and a skilled pilot are capable, the group made a sight I can never forget.

I myself was in the air a short time after this when I went on a 60-mile tour which included three Detroit and one Canadian airport. The big tri-motored plane sailed over them with the smoothness of a bird.

SHOW GREAT SIGHT

The show itself is a wonderful sight. The products of 20 plane manufacturers are on display. They range from sport autogiros to big three-motored passenger transport planes. I wish you could see Jimmy Doolittle's tiny plane—the one he used to set the cross-country record. To me it looks like a flying motor with a compartment for Jimmy to hide in.

I am having such a wonderful time that it is going to be awfully hard for me to get into that plane for Pittsburgh tomorrow afternoon.

COLUMBIA DEAN IGNORES PLEAS

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP.)—As quiet was restored on the Columbia University campus today following the one-day strike of students indignant at the expulsion of Reed Harris it was learned that Dean Herbert E. Hawkes had turned a deaf ear to the suggestion of 16 faculty members that the college newspaper editor be reinstated.

Nine o'clock classes found no more than the average number absent and the campus bore no evidence of the sporadic hostilities between "strikers" and administration supporters that marked yesterday's demonstration.

The next move of students seeking reinstatement of the militant student editor was uncertain, but the position of Dean Hawkes was unchanged. In a petition filed last night with the dean the members of the teaching staff protested the expulsion and asserted that "in this case academic freedom had been violated."

Among those who signed the protest were Corliss Lamont, instructor of philosophy in Columbia College and a son of Thomas W. Lamont, partner of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Mark Van Doren, Joseph Wood Krutch and Lewis Mumford.

Health Director Influenza Victim

PLYMOUTH, England, April 7.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Cumming, director of the United States Public Health Service, contracted influenza on the way here aboard the steamer President Roosevelt, it was learned today when the vessel arrived.

He did not come ashore as he had intended to do, but went on with the ship to recuperate in Southern France.

Pittsburgh Man Proposes To Rosa Ponselle, But Singer Won't Wed

Of the thousands of offers of marriage received by Rosa Ponselle, less than a score bore the mark of sincerity, the famed soprano revealed today at Hotel Schenley. One of these came from a Pittsburgher, a widower, who offered Miss Ponselle his modest fortune and home. Miss Ponselle added:

"But I am not seeking a husband. When Mr. Right comes along, however—that will be a different matter. I am not looking for a man to keep. When I marry I want to marry for love."

Paying her first visit to Pittsburgh in two years, Miss Ponselle has only one regret—that she was forced to leave her pet, "Whiskers," a wire-haired Irish terrier, in New York. "Whiskers" and Miss Ponselle gained notoriety recently when her pet was ordered to leave the dining room of a New Haven hotel. Miss Ponselle said:

"That incident was silly. I took the dog into the dining room at 3:30 in the afternoon, and when the manager told me he could not remain I said that I would eat elsewhere."

Miss Ponselle is looking forward to April 23 when she sings for the first time with her sister, Carmela Ponselle, in the opera "Gioconda" to be presented in Cleveland.

Woman's Vanity Seen as Cancer Preventative

BOSTON, April 7.—(AP.)—Dr. Joseph C. Bloodgood, of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, believes that the vanity of modern woman will keep modern man from cancer.

Dr. Bloodgood addressed several thousand doctors, dentists and interested laymen at the final session of a two-day cancer clinic in Symphony Hall last night. He said:

"No beautiful woman suffers from cancer of the skin because she pays immediate attention to all skin blemishes.

"Thank God, women have learned to smoke because they can teach men to smoke without getting cancer. Women keep their teeth and mouth clean and thus do not get cancer of the mouth."

TELLS OF GIFTS AT BALM TRIAL

CLEVELAND, April 7.—(AP.)—Miss Grace Priehs, former beauty parlor employe of Pittsburgh, testified today in her $100,000 breach of promise suit against Arthur H. Geiger, retired Alliance merchant, that he took her on trips to Cleveland and showered her with gifts.

A sheaf of letters written by Geiger to the woman while he was visiting in Europe in 1927 was introduced as evidence. Miss Priehs said, however, that they contained no mention of the marriage promise which she claimed he made in 1927 and broke in 1930.

Geiger sent her perfume from France and a brooch from Italy among other gifts, Miss Priehs testified. A fur coat was another present, she said.

Geiger, however, declared Miss Priehs "bought the coat and then asked me for the money for it."

Counterfeiters Found In Italian Prison

GENOA, April 7.—(AP.)—The police were aghast today when, coming to the end of the trail in a search for counterfeiters, they discovered that excellently-made spurious coins of 5 and 10 lire were being turned out by convicts at Marassi prison and circulated by the warden.

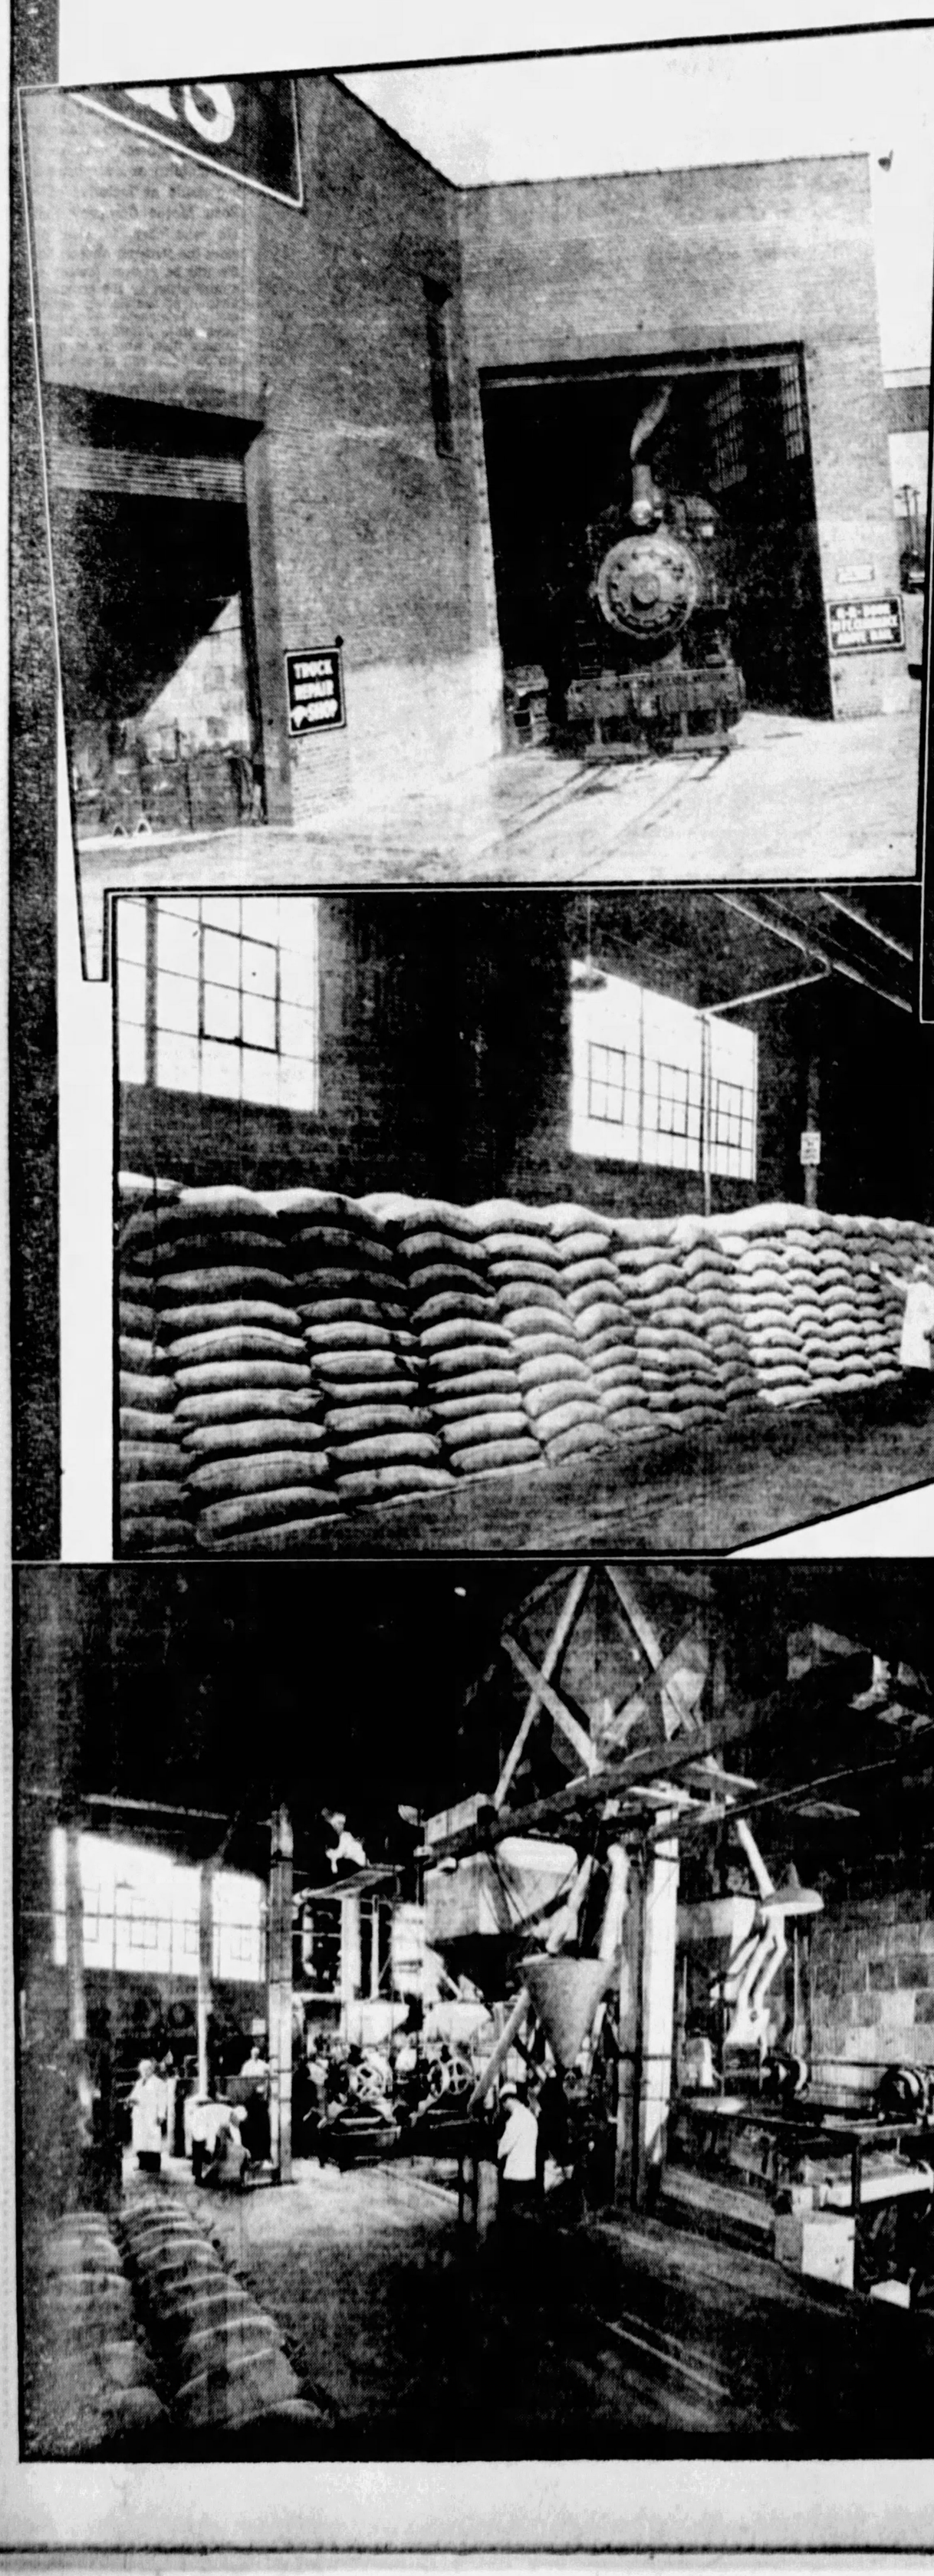
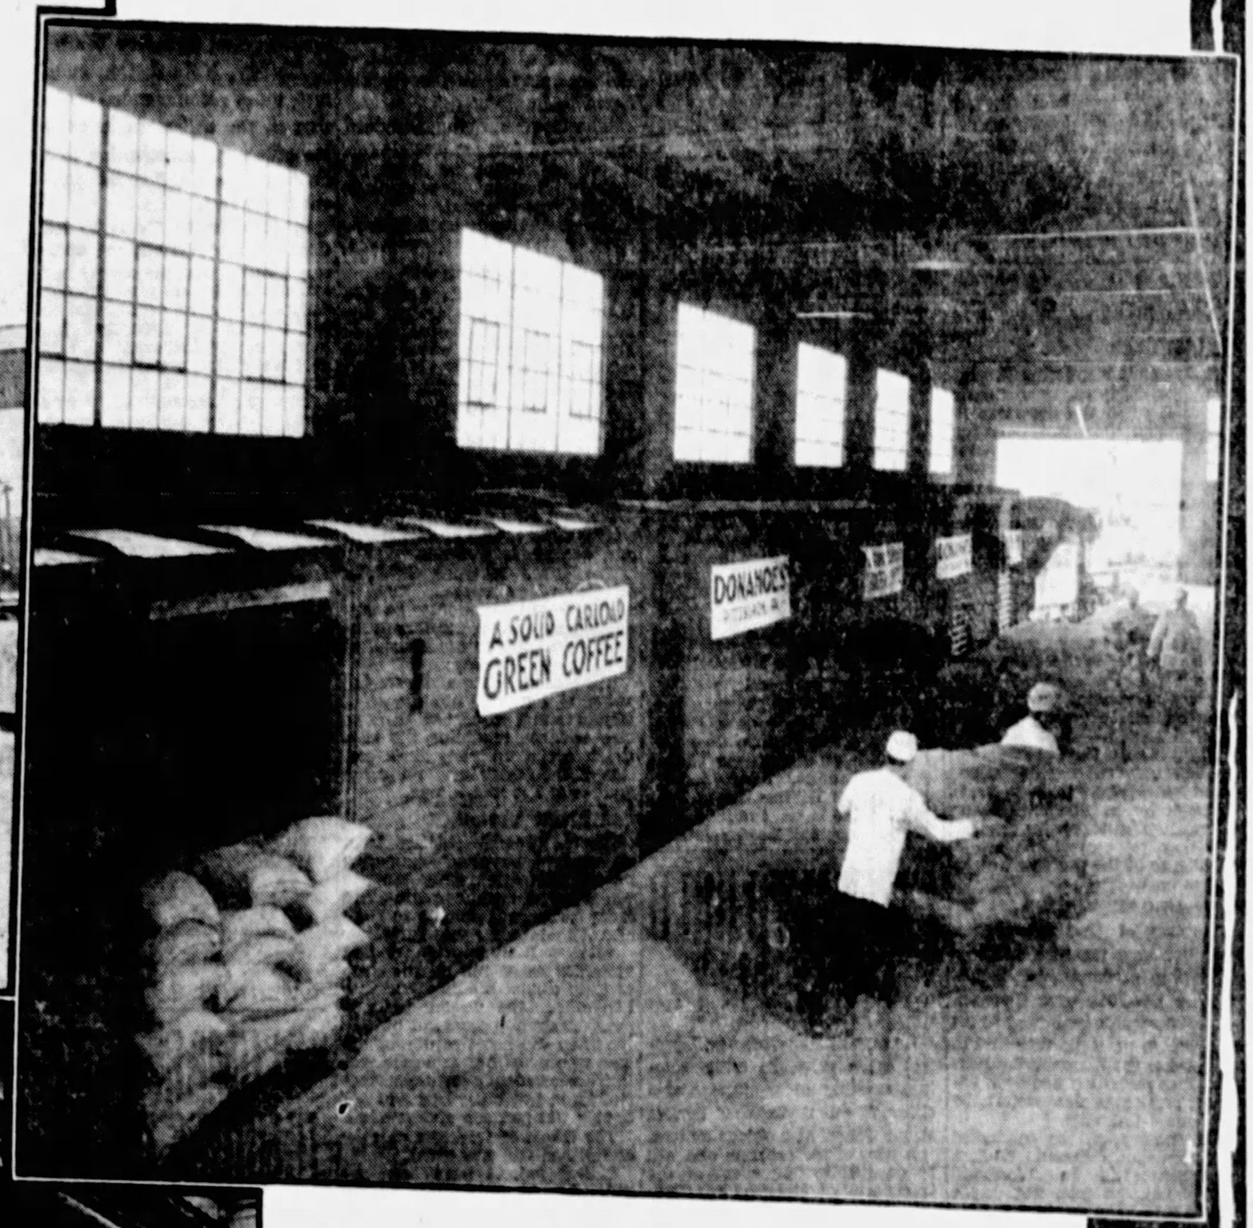
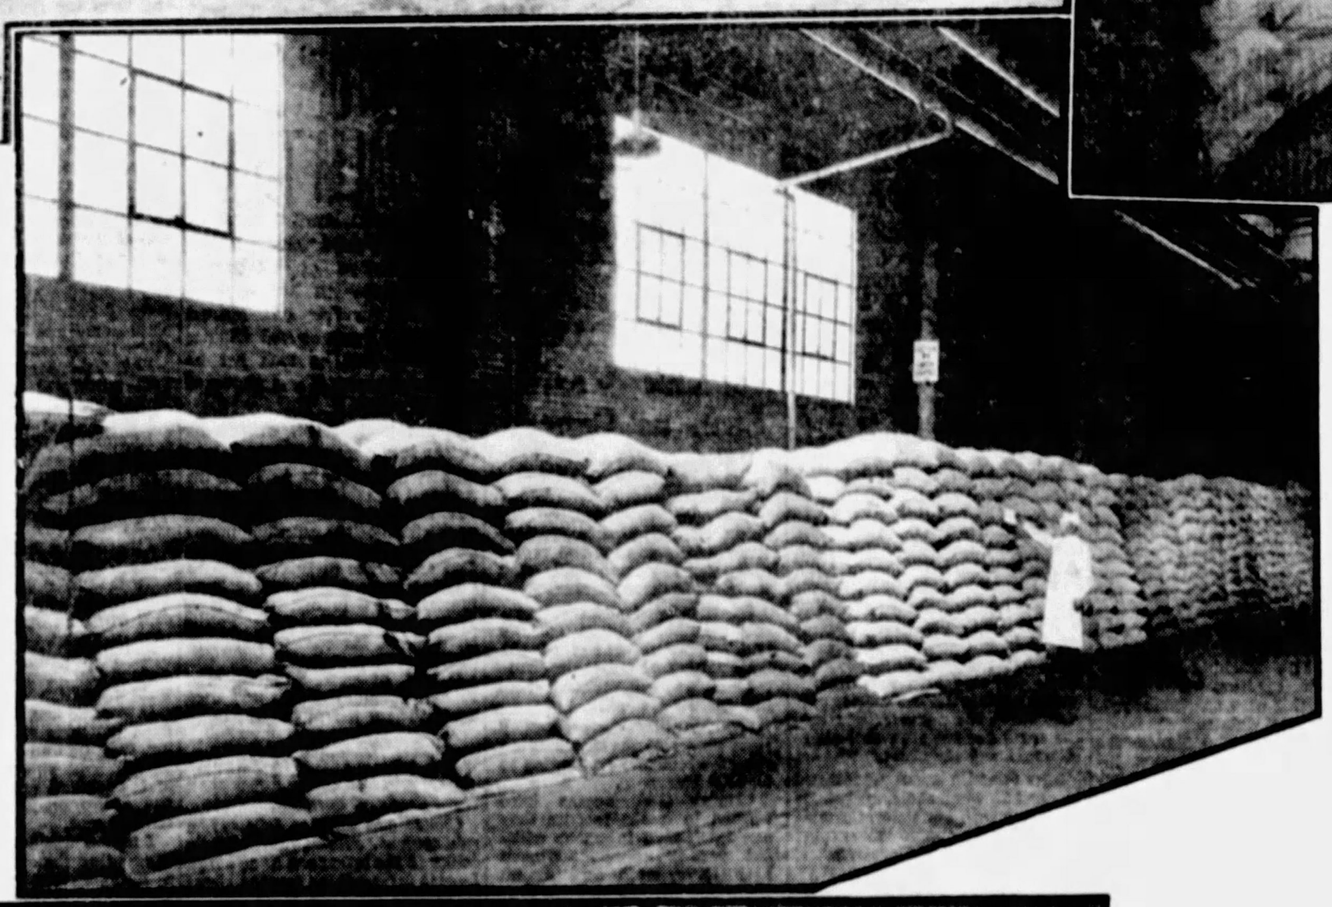
Letting you know that Donahoe's are THE Coffee House of Pittsburgh

a page of pictures that tell you graphically, at a glance, the large part Donahoe's play as purveyors of fine coffee to the people of Greater Pittsburgh.







Here's the Story:

The center photo (at left) shows a section in the Donahoe warehouse, where 396,000 pounds of green coffee—3,000 bags of 132 pounds each—make a solid mountain of coffee 160 feet long, 8 feet high, 10 feet deep.

Green coffee improves with age—in addition to carrying an immense stock of green coffee "mellowing out" in our own warehouse, Donahoe's generally carry a tremendous stock of green coffee in New York warehouses—for instance, in October, 1931, Donahoe's had the record-breaking stock of one million three hundred twenty-six thousand two hundred and four (1,326,204)

Photo at lower left shows Donahoe's modern coffee-roasting plant in operation. It has a daily coffee-roasting capacity of 36,000 pounds. Frequently we are obliged to operate it day AND night.

What do the facilities shown in these photos mean to YOU . . . When it comes to coffee they mean emanate from a party which has abandoned liberty and adopted hypocrisy as its guiding political principle.

THEY MEAN

Will the Senate Do Its Duty to the Public?

Furthermore, even if the regular Republican Senators should be disposed to take a conscientious and conservative course in the present national emergency there are enough insurrectionary Republicans to join with the revolutionary Democrats and prevent any sound and constructive economic measure for the benefit of the whole people from being enacted.

In fact, to encourage and stimulate just such an illicit coalition, Senator "Hooey" Long, of Louisiana, has recently risen upon his legs to demand that all incomes (which exceed the salary of a Senator) be virtually confiscated by the state.

THERE IS A STRONG probability, therefore, that the rogue elephants in the Senate will join the jackass rabbits of the House in a Communistic program to sock the employer and reduce employment, to confiscate capital and reduce purchasing and production, to swat business and reduce dividends and to penalize initiative and enterprise and handicap industry.

This is the day of the demagogue.

The people are confused and disturbed and the demagogue can take advantage of the confusion and disturbance to try to promote his own small political fortunes.

The pitfall that lies in the path of the demagogue, however, is that someone can always be found who is willing to be more of a demagogue than he and who is willing to make a more violent appeal to the frenzy of the mob, willing to wave the red flag more vehemently and apply the torch more destructively.

THUS IT WAS that Marat gave place to Robespierre, and Trotsky yielded to Stalin, and one demagogue after another was himself consumed in the fire he had kindled.

When the flames of Bolshevism have once been started it is difficult to arrest them.

Your demagogue may only have intended to light a cheery little blaze to warm his own political shins and make his own public place cozy and pleasant, but the fire spreads and he together with others more worthy are enveloped in the conflagration which eventually brings the social and economic structure down upon the heads of the citizenship.

Not all the propaganda of the Russian revolutionaries over which we all raised such a commotion has done as much to spread the spirit of Bolshevism as the unfortunate utterances and excesses of some of our own misguided Representatives at Washington.

NOT ALL THE BITTER competitive efforts of envious and hostile foreign nations and industries have done as much to injure our economic condition and our national wealth and welfare as the vicious and violent legislation of our own prejudiced and misinformed legislators.

The strong man and able leader does not hysterically shout "fire" in the theater when the audience is prone to panic.

He tries to calm the people's fears and to lead them in orderly manner out of danger and destruction to confidence and safety.

Conservative and constructive action is what the people of the United States expect from the strong men and capable leaders in the Senate of the United States in this epochal moment so vital to the national wealth and welfare.

The Senate of the United States is an historic institution which is respected by the people of the United States, and those individual Senators will be personally honored and respected who prove worthy of the best traditions of the Senate on this momentous occasion.

GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE, a simple and practicable economic program equally for the benefit of the government and the people is in no way difficult to conceive or to execute.

Suspend our national debt reductions.

Collect all debts due us by foreign nations.

Increase postal rates as proposed and reduce government expenses to what they were (interest excepted) before the great war.

Borrow and spend one billion dollars a year to relieve unemployment until the depression is over.

When you have completed this program, adjourn to receive the honors and applause of a grateful people.

Do NOT constrain capital and restrain investment and development by further reducing by added taxation individual or corporation incomes already heavily taxed and already dangerously depleted by deflation.

AND, GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE, lest you imagine that the Hearst papers are animated by any selfish motive in their attitude, please allow the fact to be stated that the Canadian sales tax the Hearst papers so ardently advocate would cost those papers over one million dollars per year in a tax levy on print paper which could, in no way at present conceivable, be passed on to the ultimate consumer.

But the Hearst papers advocate what they believe to be best for the nation, and in this serious national situation all personal interests together with all personal antagonisms and prejudices should be subordinated to the common good.

AIRPORT LEASE PERMIT GIVEN

Authorization to make leases for use of the County Airport has been given Hal J. Bazley, director of the port, by the County Commissioners.

Three commercial operators have applied for use of the field and office space. At the Commissioners' meeting yesterday Bazley said the port will be ready in two weeks to take care of air line operators.

Swissvale Trolley Injures Little Girl

Downtown Blaze Causes Little Loss

PLANE TRAVEL BOOM SEEN

More than 2,000,000 passengers will be riding the air lines of the United States by 1937, and mail and express will cross the continent between dawn and dusk, it was predicted today by T. Park Hay, sales promotion director of Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc.

Hay, speaking before the Rotary Club yesterday, revealed an increase of 3,000 per cent in air travel during the past five years.

Platinum Found On Chirikof Island

State Police Probe Sharpsburg Blast

State police for two days have been investigating the mysterious explosion in the Lowry Real Estate Company building, Sharpsburg, it was learned today. The company is owned by Leo Horstman, Sharpsburg councilman, who has been campaigning for a vice cleanup in the borough. Horstman and police blamed the explosion on gas. County detectives say it was caused by a charge of dynamite.

East End Girl, Boy Suffer Dog Bites

A girl and a boy in the East End were bitten by dogs yesterday. Miss Nellie Clark, 20, of 309 North Sheridan avenue, bitten on the right knee while walking in Collins avenue, was treated by a physician and sent home.

Arthur Gumto, Jr., 10, of 6033 Lemington avenue, was bitten on the leg by a stray dog near his home. The wound was cauterized by a physician.

FIRE WARNING SIGN OF SPRING

An indisputable sign of spring was on hand today in the shape of a warning from the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters against carelessness in starting brush fires.

E. C. Pyle, acting district forester, pointed out that more than 1,400 acres of woodland in Western Pennsylvania was damaged by 50 brush fires last year.

From June 15 to September 15 is the least dangerous time in which to burn brush, he said.

METROPOLITAN OPERA SAVED

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP)—The Metropolitan Opera Company, threatened with extinction because of heavy losses, apparently has straightened out its finances sufficiently to continue.

Reports, apparently authentic, that the company would shorten its season and reduce prices next year were received by newspapers.

The season will be 16 weeks instead of the present 24, it was understood, and the price of tickets will be slashed about 25 per cent. A voluntary pay cut by the singers and the rest of the personnel helped.

Paul D. Cravath has been re-elected president.

Everyone shrinks at the word "Pyorrhea"

PYORRHEA SHRINKS THE GUMS (TEETH COME OUT)

Strong men show fear at the thought of pyorrhea. Women flinch at the sound of the word. And no wonder. Everybody knows someone who has suffered from this terrible disease, someone who has lost seemingly sound teeth.

Four out of five people past the age of forty have pyorrhea. It is a silent disease. It steals on you. It may be sapping the structure of your gums and teeth for years—and you may not know. Eventually you will know. Half of the adult teeth lost are due to pyorrhea.

Of course your dentist will repair the damage skillfully. You are not paying him any compliment, though, if you go to him only for dental repairs. He would much prefer to prevent the loss of teeth.

Visit your dentist twice a year. That is prevention—and sensible prevention too. Then there is the question of home treatment and care. There is no use in making believe that white, shining, "clean" teeth are either safe or sound. Nobody believes that any more. The gums must be considered as well. Forhan's Toothpaste is the double-duty toothpaste that does both halves of the job. Originated by Dr. R. J. Forhan, for 26 years a pyorrhea specialist. Save pain, expense and humiliation. Start the whole family today with the big brown tube of Forhan's. All druggists.

GAS RATE CUT DEMANDED BY 4 TOWNS

Consumers Cite Earnings Of Union Firm in Appeal To P. S. C. for Cost Slash

Lower natural gas rates are demanded of the Public Service Commission by residents of Grove City, Sandy Lake, Stoneboro and Volant. Consumers pay the Union Heat and Light Company supplying those communities 65 cents per 1,000 cubic feet net, or 5 cents more than charged by companies supplying the Pittsburgh district.

Records offered Commissioner S. Ray Shelby, who heard the complaint yesterday, show the company is capitalized at $120,000 with only $97,000 stock issued. From 1920 to 1931 inclusive according to the records compiled the company paid dividends totaling $230,040. In 1922 the company paid dividends of 84 2-3 per cent and in 1925 paid 60 per cent it was declared. The protestants declare dividends for the last nine years have averaged 19 per cent.

Protests also were made against the payment of a monthly meter service charge of 60 cents. The company collected $28,298 in one year for this charge, it was declared. The protestants ask the commission to fix a rate more in keeping with actual values and the trend of the times.

Man Jailed, Store Seized for Alimony

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., April 7.—V. Austin Shade, merchant here, went to jail under court instructions and his store was locked by the Sheriff because of his refusal to pay $110 back alimony to a former wife, Mrs. Mabel Shade. Stock in the store will be sold to satisfy the claim.

Jailed for Forging U. S. Certificates

William Hicks, of Ellwood City, pleaded guilty in Federal Court of forging and passing three government adjusted service certificates, on which he collected $700, and was sentenced by Judge Nelson McVicar to serve four months in jail.

2 Held in Dry Raid On Webster Avenue

Prohibition agents raided a confectionery on Webster avenue and reported seizing five gallons of moonshine whisky and a pint of gin. Joseph Mike Nassif, 21, and Nassif Mike Massif, 17, Syrians, were arrested in connection with the raid.

Bring a touch of SPRING to breakfast

All the family will welcome Kellogg's Rice Krispies these mornings. Delicious, toasted rice bubbles that are so crisp they crackle in milk or cream. What could be more refreshing—or so much of a change from the heavy, hot dishes of winter!

And truth to tell, we don't need so many heavy, hot foods in this age of steam-heated houses and closed automobiles. Cold weather just isn't what it used to be. That's why red flannels and bed warmers have disappeared—and why crisp, delicious cereals are becoming more and more popular.

Kellogg's Rice Krispies are rich in energy, easy to digest. Splendid for children's meals. Economical and healthful. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Quality guaranteed.

MUSIC

The Gondoliers

Carnegie Music Hall

Mr. Lissfelt

The departments of music and drama of Carnegie Institute of Technology presented Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Gondoliers" last night in Carnegie Music Hall. The audience must have felt that there were once upon a time far more clever librettists than today who with the help of a talented writer of tunes could make the healthiest propaganda and could be the best critic of a nation. Gilbert and Sullivan were such a pair; what each contributed is as fresh today as when it first came to the stage.

Tech can boast of its youngsters, for they did many a smart turn last night. Above all things in such a show there must be sharpest diction to trip along with the rhymes and put over the footlights every verbal subtlety. That the singers were able to do. There are many good voices in the show and some well studied dancing. The student orchestra, under the strict beat of J. Vick O'Brien, played a rousing accompaniment at all times. Scenery and costuming were according to Tech's best, always charming.

Thomas McMahon's leading gondolier was excellently in part. As a dancer, actor and singer he was earnest throughout. Emanuel Breakstone, his partner, lacked sparkle. The "Duke" of Richard Dryden and Samuel Messer's "Don Alhambra" were good character bits. Elinore Steenson's "Duchess" was inflexibly stately. Evelyn Pfeifer's "Casilda," Suranne Seiger's "Gianetta" and Beth Gose's "Tessa" were gay portraits.

The entire production is happy entertainment, and the staff should have its reward in a full house tonight.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

FIGHTS MATE'S CITIZENSHIP

A wife appeared against her husband today in Federal Court on his final citizenship hearing.

Judge Nelson McVicar withheld decision in the case of Carl Burkardt, 42, of 422 Collins avenue, after Mrs. Charlotte Burkardt, 28, his wife, had testified he would not be a good citizen.

She said they were married in December, 1926, lived in New York in 1927 and there her husband threatened to kill her. She declared in August, 1928, in Atlantic City, one night she awoke to find him trying to put a rope around her neck; later the same year they were walking near Somhers Point, N. J., when he slashed her wrists and then cut himself. She declared they were in a hospital several weeks after, which they separated.

Burkardt declared they had agreed to a suicide pact and that his wife had bought the ropes. She denied any such agreement.

Let 'Em Starve!

What do I care about "the 28,000 families in Allegheny County who are about to be abandoned to starvation?" That's tough luck! I have my own troubles. I've lost a lot of money the last couple of years, given away all I intend to. If 160,000 people will have nothing to eat after May first—well, what of it?

Is That Your Voice?

Shall we vote against the helpless, inarticulate 28,000 unemployed men, penniless and helpless to provide for their dependents? Is it our wish that that total of 160,000, every tenth one of our neighbors, be left foodless, hopeless?

IT IS, if we are doing anything less than our top limit to provide for them. IT IS, if we're refusing to give to the Family-Help-Family Fund. IT IS, in part, if we're giving a dollar less than the best we can manage.

IT IS, if we alibi with "let the taxpayers do it".

Public funds are almost exhausted. No more can be made available for months to come. In the meantime, these unfortunates will have plenty of time to die. And die some of them will unless YOU AND I vote "Yes" to the question being asked us by the Family-Help-Family campaign NOW.

At $100 Per Family

How Many Persons in This County Can Take Care of 1000 Families Each?
Perhaps half a dozen have the means

How Many Others Can Take Care of 500 Families Each?
Perhaps a score of individuals and firms could do it

How Many Possible Donors Are There for 100 Families Each—$10,000 Apiece?
Two hundred at most

How Many Potential Givers CAN, Today, Give Even $100 Each—Take Care of One Family for Three Months?
At the outside, five thousand

"The little fellows" will give, and give from the heart out, if the three to five thousand possible big givers cast their vote FOR the distressed. But all the little fellows together, today, can't give more than twenty per cent of the answer.

We who can if we will give from $100 to $100,000 will cast eighty per cent of the vote.

If we don't give, we sentence to starvation that number of families we COULD care for.

If we could provide for 100 families, and give for ten, we're driving from our door ninety men and ninety women and their children.

If our "possible" is ten families, and we give enough for one, we're saying "give up hope" to the other nine.

We have to vote now, in the Family-Help-Family appeal.

Do WE say

"LET 'EM STARVE"?

Embers of Love

CHAPTER LV.

Angry tears stung Lily Lou's eyes. Angry words sprung to her lips. But she choked back the tears, and the words. There was nothing she could say. She sat quiet and let her sister tell that an adopted child was a terrible risk, and if she had to have a pet she would have done better to buy a dog, or a couple of pedigreed cats.

Oh, how she longed for some one who would understand . . . someone whom she could talk to . . . her mother . . . And her mother had died, never knowing the truth . . .

She wanted Bess to come to San Francisco for the two weeks, to bring all the children, and stay with her at the Fairmont. Robin should have children to play with, and they were his own cousins. . .

But Bess, shy or independent, would not come. She invited Lily Lou to come up to Woodlake after the opera season, instead. "I can easily take care of you and the boy," she wrote, "but don't bring any French maids with you. We still eat in the kitchen and proud of it—"

She would have loved to see her father. But he was off in the back country working on a sheep ranch. May said, and there wasn't any way of getting mail to him.

TERMED AS LUCKY

May didn't have much good to report of him. It seems that he was "paying attention" to Mrs. Veemer, the dressmaker in Woodlake, quite an ordinary woman, red cheeked, well upholstered, good natured, and certainly not too refined.

"He should be restrained!" May said. "The old fool, wanting to get married again, after all the putting up Mother did with him! After the way she tried to make a decent citizen out of him!"

When Lily Lou did not answer, she cried, "Oh, well, you've been away so long that nothing matters to you. You don't care what Dad does, and we're all just ancient history to you. I don't suppose you'd ever knew Kentfield Sargent if you saw him. You know, you were lucky to get out of that. Good heavens, Lily Lou, you almost missed everything, just by being so silly as to go and get married the way you did! By this time you'd have been an old married woman, like me, and maybe a couple of kids—"

Lily Lou smiled. "What about Robin?"

"Oh, he's just a fad with you. A child that isn't your own isn't any more trouble than any other kind of pet. Bess said that! It's just an extravagance, that's all. And here you are, with the world at your fingertips—with everything!"

"Yes," Lily Lou said, "with everything!"

CONTINUES TRIUMPHS

And after May had gone she took Robin on her lap and played Cowboy and Indian until he was sleepy. "Yes—everything," she thought—"or, as near everything as one gets—"

And then she smiled a little as she thought of what May would have thought if she had told her she would have traded everything for what she had—a home, even a shabby home, and someone who loved her—

There had been letters and flowers and friends—Tony's friends—friends of the theater and the world of art and music—

ROBIN DELIGHTED

She wasn't disappointed. She had not expected any of the people she used to know. Once upon a time she would have expected Ken, but if he failed her when her mother died, naturally he'd fail her now.

She couldn't help hoping that Ken's father would read about her. He had laughed at her when she said she'd be a star. Well, she was. Her name had been written in electric lights. She was young yet—years ahead—for greater glories . . . Might as well fight for them . . . It would help Robin . . .

She brought him with her, to see the Snow Maiden. It was a treat she had promised him. Bess had not come down from the lake with the children. They would have loved the fairy opera.

She thrilled to see her little boy's sparkling eyes, as he stood in her dressing room and admired her in her gown of frost and stardust. "You look just like a fairy princess," he told her, seriously.

"A rather made-up princess," she told him, laughing at her reflection in the brightly illumined mirrors. But she did look like a child's dream of fairyland, with the glorious glittering headdress, the filmy white of the gown, her black hair in long curls, like a doll's, cascading down her back.

After the performance Marie brought Robin back to the dressing room. He was scarlet with excitement.

"Mother, I wish you would be the Sleeping Beauty some time. I would like to see you be the Sleeping Beauty. Don't they have an opera of that? Then I wish to see one with cowboys, like Auntie Vera's opera, mother, can't we have one like that, please?"

VISITED BY FATHER

He was talking about Vera Votipaka, and her role of Girl of the Golden West, with which he had been much impressed.

"Some day. We'll see, darling!"

She knelt beside him, still in grease and paint and glittering draperies, holding his little hands.

George Farmer, the publicity manager, tapped at her door.

"There's an old fellow who's determined to get in to see you, Mme. Lansing. Says his name is Lansing, and he's a distant relation. Do you want to see him?"

Lily Lou's heart bounded. Stopped beating for a second. Dad! Her own father—it must be!

It was. He followed close at the publicity manager's heels, a little shy, but not too much impressed with all the show, the unfamiliar surroundings, the little group of admirers who waited outside.

"Dad!" she hugged him, laughing and crying, a little hysterical at the thought of having him here, in the city, at her performance—

PROUD OF HER

She scanned his weather-beaten face anxiously. He hadn't changed much. He seemed a little younger, a little happier, a little more like Uncle Eph . . .

"Oh, Dad—you don't know how I've wanted to see you!"

She hid her face on his shoulder, still laughing and crying, not knowing just what to say.

"I was proud of you, Dolly," he told her, holding her off at arm's length to look at her. You sang all your notes true, and you looked very handsome. I bought me a good two dollar seat, and it was worth it—"

"Dad, you could have had the stage box—the front row—anything!"

"Now, don't you go throwing your money away. You save your money, Lily Lou! I didn't mind the two dollars. Didn't I say it was worth it!"

She looked at him. His old, shiny suit, his carefully combed hair, the collar that was too large, and frayed along the edges. Her heart was bursting.

"Yes, I come down from the lake last night," he said. "I don't always read the papers every day. I'm up at your Uncle Eph's place most of the time now, and sometimes I kind of let the papers pile up and read them at the end of the week. So when I saw you were here—"

"I tried so hard to find you, dad. Bess—"

"Yes, I know. Bessie, she doesn't like me herding sheep up there. Verner's kind of putting on the dog lately, and I guess she wants I should dress up more. It's kind of a relief for me not to dress up, Dolly. I guess I'm kind of a careless old man now. But I slicked up for today—"

"You could have come in your dungarees!"

"Yes, you and me . . . sort of alike, Dolly. That your boy?"

She had forgotten Robin, playing quietly in a corner.

For one hideous moment she hesitated. The lie that had been so easy before was impossible now. And yet . . .

The old man did not wait for her to answer.

"Come see your grandad, son," he said, holding a horny hand out to the child.

Robin moved toward him slowly, serious dark eyes, studying the granddad who didn't look like anyone he had ever seen before.

"He's got a good head," her father said, taking the little boy on his knee. "Gets that from your mother's side. I wouldn't say he had any of the Sargent in him, unless it's kind of around the mouth and chin."

Don't Let Visiting Friends Use Up All Your Time

Do folks treat your home like a roadhouse?

Do they drop in to call, at all hours and at no hours, and stay till the milkman clatters on his rounds in the morning?

Do they invite themselves to dinner and sit around chatting blithely, while you fume because you'd like to step out to the picture house down the street?

Then you'll give big whoops of sympathy when you tune in on Tired's broadcast because that is what is happening to her, and she wants to know what she can do about it.

Maybe you can tell her. She needs help if a human ever did.

TOO MANY CALLERS

Here's the whole sad tale:

"Dear Miss Martin:

"Perhaps you'll think this is a strange problem. Maybe it is the strangest you've ever seen, but it is true. What do you think about it? Is there some way out?

"We are a married couple 34 years old. My husband's salary is $150 a month. We own our own home—10 rooms and modern. We have a car, and we get along wonderfully together. We seldom have words, and have been married 14 years.

"This is no divorce problem. What I want to know is—how can we keep from having so much company? It is killing both of us. We don't even get enough rest. Night after night and day after day our house is full.

"Some one comes to call and there they stay till all hours, even though they know my husband has to get up at 6:30 a. m. We can't insult them, though we do remark that it's getting late or that we are tired, but that seems to make no difference. We don't even get a chance to sit a minute alone in the evening.

"Someone is always here before we finish dinner, or to dinner. Not that we invite them. They invite themselves. If we want to go to the theater we have to leave home at 4 in the afternoon and then sneak out like thieves for fear someone has decided to call.

NEED REST

"We have too many friends, that's the whole trouble. I'm a nervous wreck. I need rest, and if we both don't get some soon, it's going to be just too bad.

"Why do people do such things? Even if we call on them they get peeved if we want to go home as early as 10 or 11 o'clock, and they have the nerve at our house to tell us they're not going home till morning, even though we never coax anyone to stay.

"Every Saturday night since the first of the year we've had a houseful, and the earliest we got to bed was 3 a. m. and all hours after that. Don't you think that's awful?

"If these people only knew how we wish they would go home. We have prayed real prayers to be left alone for a week so we could rest, but I guess we don't pray right.

"Now understand, we love our friends. We love to have them call, but we would also love to see them leave when the right time comes, by midnight, at latest.

"What can we do without insulting them? Perhaps you have an idea. Please don't tell us to be mean, we couldn't do that to anybody, but please do help us. My memory is even getting bad. I am so worn out.

"TIRED."

MUST BE FIRM

Have I an idea? I have! Several of them. And one is that since your friends won't use any consideration, you'll have to get up spunk enough to shoo them out at some reasonable time.

You can't afford to let them wreck your health and your very lives. It's up to you to protect yourselves. You can't expect other folks to do that if you haven't spunk enough to do it for yourselves.

"But we can't insult them!" you cry. You don't need to. But you can explain pleasantly but firmly that you're dead tired and it's time for the party to break up. You can say: This has been a pleasant evening but you know that Charlie has to get up early and work hard, so we'll have to call it a day."

And then stick to it. Then if anyone is goofy enough to get mad, let him.

People who refuse to respect your rights are mighty poor friends, and they won't be much loss if they never come back.

Heart Responds to Beauties That Come with Spring, Says Fay King

I'M GOING TO SORT OVER FLERTING AND GIVE AWAY WHAT WE DO NOT USE OR NEED!
WE'LL HAVE THE HOUSE RE-ROOFED AND PAINTED!
— AND THE TREES TRIMMED AND YARD DONE!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Spring is here and spring brings hope.

We look about us and see Nature rouse herself from the long rest of Winter.

The days grow longer and the balmy air refreshes us.

Already the grocery store is beginning to rival the florist shop in a riot of greenery and color.

The heart beats faster and responds to the beauties that come with spring.

Like the very shrubs we, too, seem roused from drowsiness that held us hidebound.

We begin to think of housecleaning, and repairing one's wardrobe, and renovating one's house, and re-arranging the garden—and out of this should come work for many and dohations of superfluous things!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

To Prevent an Operation, Take Care of Your Liver

Recently I wrote about the liver and described this important organ of the body. Today I want to tell you about some disorders of the liver and gall bladder.

Dr. Copeland

The liver and gall bladder together are often referred to as forming the biliary system. As with other parts of the body, this system may become disabled by distant infection. Tonsils, teeth, nasal sinuses, appendix or intestines may be the seat of infection.

The germs are carried to the gall bladder and set up an infection there, which after a short time may clear up. This is called acute cholecystitis or acute inflammation of the gall bladder. When this infection persists, chronic cholecystitis results.

I am frequently asked what is the cause of gallstones. There are many causes. Infection is believed to be the most frequent cause. Gallstones have been described by an eminent medical writer as the "tombstones of dead germs." Never neglect infections of the gall bladder, for they may produce gallstones.

Many persons write asking whether surgery is the only method of cure for gallstones. Once gallstones are formed, there is no medicine known to medical science that will dissolve them. Diet and medication may relieve the attacks but they do not remove the stones.

Not all cases of gallstones are painful. It is only when the stone slips into one of the small ducts of the gall bladder and causes a spasm that severe pain is produced. Contrary to a popular belief, jaundice, or a yellow color of the skin is rarely found with gallstones. This condition is found only when the stone is in the bile duct and its presence does not permit the bile to reach the gall bladder.

As a rule a person with gallstones has a vague, uncomfortable feeling just below and to the right of the breast bone. This discomfort may go around the right chest and often passes to the right shoulder. This is usually mistaken for neuritis of the right shoulder.

Gas and other digestive disturbances also are common symptoms. The disease is most frequently found in women who are fair, fat and beyond 40 years of age.

Please bear in mind that infection of the gall bladder may occur at any time. If the infection occurs and is neglected, abscess formation is rapid, and these cases require emergency operations.

If you have a tendency to gallstones, it is best to avoid fried and greasy foods, salt, pepper, spices and condiments. Water should be drunk freely between meals. Free elimination is imperative.

If you have been advised by your physician that an operation is necessary, do not delay. It is far better to walk into a hospital for the operation than to be rushed in because of extreme emergency.

Household Hints

When mixing pastry add a few drops of vinegar. You will find the pastry much lighter.

Squeaking shoes can be remedied by rubbing the soles with a cloth over which a little olive oil has been sprinkled.

A few drops of paraffin added to the blacking will give a good polish to damp boots and shoes, and it also prevents cracking.

When troubled with slipping on polished floors, which is especially dangerous for old people, fasten a few strips of adhesive plaster to the bottom of the shoe.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Hair ornaments are of metal, tortoise shell and brilliants. Little clips to hold the wave where it should stay come in lovely color effects. Chinese red and jade green being the most popular selections.

It is not safe to apply an acid for the purpose of removing moles. These brown spots can be successfully treated by various means, electrolysis, the X-ray or the freezing process. Few of them are a menace, anything to fear, but if they are to be banished a skilled specialist, who understands them and their ways, should do the work.

Sagging facial tissues can be corrected by massage and cold water—if. And the "if" is something to think about! It is "if" there is carried upon the portrait an expression of cheerfulness which hoists up muscles instead of letting them drag and droop.

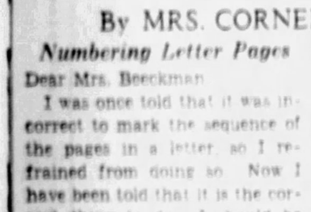
White lipsticks can be purchased, their mission is to keep the little pink petals from getting dry and ragged. Lanoline, which comes in tubes, has a healing quality that puts rough lip surfaces in good condition again. Biting the lips is a habit that is ruinous to their loveliness.

Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Selfish or Stupid Bidding

On the hand shown below Z did some very bad bidding. I saw the hand bid and played only a few nights ago. Whether Z's strategy was wholly selfish or merely stupid, I do not know.



Z made rather a questionable opening bid of 1-Spade upon a bare two sure tricks, with ability to rebid. Such a bid always leaves the bidder in somewhat of an apologetic mood, not in the best frame of mind to thereafter proceed in the best possible manner.

A overcalled the opening bid with 2-Clubs. Y utilized a demand bid of 3-Diamonds. Once a forcing bid is made, contracting must not stop short of game contract, unless a more profitable double can be made of an opposing bid. B passed and Z responded with a reasonable declaration of 3-Spades. As yet he was not certain that Y could not support spades. The jumped diamond bid might have been introduced to discover how good a suit Z had bid.

A passed, but Y bid 4-Hearts. Surely that should have notified the partner that spade support was lacking, but over B's pass, Z bid 4-Spades. Of course one may argue that even a game bid need not prevent the partner from again denying spades, with an overall of 5-Diamonds. But look at the situation from Y's standpoint. Although Y held so much in both red suits, and in spite of the fact that A had found enough strength to bid 2-Clubs, Z had made an opening bid and then had rebid his spades twice. That looked like a very powerful trump suit, well able to go game and perhaps to do better than that. To have opening bid strength it appeared that Z must have both black aces, and probably either a side K or a side Q-J, unless he held six spades to at least the A-Q. One cannot blame Y for letting the contract die at 4-Spades.

As the cards lie Z should have fulfilled his game contract. All that he need lose is one trump trick and two club tricks. The opening lead was the K of Clubs that Z won with his Ace. He could have put dummy in the lead with its K of Spades, discarded one Club upon the Ace of Hearts. Gained entry to his own hand with the J of Diamonds, then led his Ace of Spades, which would have dropped the Q at his left. Then he would have lost only one spade trick to the J, and two club tricks to A's top cards of that suit. Instead of acting in that same manner, Z attempted to discard his losing clubs on dummy's top diamonds. Of course B ruffed the third lead of diamonds with his low trump, leaving his J of Spades still good, and on top of that Z had to lose two club tricks.

Had Z bid 5-Diamonds instead of making his bid 4-Spades, a grand slam could not have been missed. Y probably would have bid only 6-Diamonds, but that would have made a difference in the score of just 1,620 points, being vulnerable.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Numbering Letter Pages

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I was once told that it was incorrect to mark the sequence of the pages in a letter, so I refrained from doing so. Now I have been told that it is the correct thing to do. I should be very grateful if you would clear this matter up for me. M. R.

Children always make a great point of numbering the pages of their letters, and when grown-ups do this there is a bit of the immature appearance to the letter. Now it is not necessary to number the pages if we write the pages in the order customarily used by the majority of the people. There are two forms of sequence most in use. One is the order that we would use when we are reading a book, the front of the first page, the back of the first page, the front of the second page, the back of the second page. The other sequence is the one even more in use. First the first page, then the last page, and then, turning the sheet around, use the two inner pages as if they were one page and write down the page. Then it really isn't necessary to use any numerals.

Give Him the Order

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Does a woman wear or check her wrap when dining at a hotel or club?

2. Who orders the man or the woman?

3. I think it would help if you give some advice on ordering and names of some of the dishes and courses as found on menus of some good clubs.

THANKS.

Usually she wears her wrap to the table and "rests" it on the back of her chair. Somehow it seems a bit out of keeping for a woman to check her wrap in a restaurant.

2. The man gives the order to the waiter. Which means also that the woman tells her order to the man, not to the waiter.

3. Thank you for the suggestion, and a very good one it is. I will do this some day, when there is room, for it would take a great deal of room. In the meantime, if you will send me any definite problems along this line, I shall be most happy to answer them.

MOTOR FREIGHT PROTEST AIRED

Opposition was offered before Public Service Commissioner Samuel Walker yesterday against granting a certificate to Clyde D. Duffee, of Oil City, to operate a motor truck freight service between Pittsburgh and Oil City. The Erie and Pennsylvania railroad companies assert Duffee is operating illegally.

Duffee testified he helped finance the service in 1911, before the creation of the Public Service Commission.

Attorney Edward O. Tabor, of Pittsburgh, representing Duffee, brought out that he became the sole owner of the business four years ago. The railroads maintain that Duffee should have operated under Public Service Commission jurisdiction.

He employs eight drivers and charges the same rates as the railroads, but makes door-to-door deliveries between Pittsburgh, Butler, Grove City, Slippery Rock, Franklin, Oil City and vicinity.

Mr. Frederic A. Weston, Advertising Director,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Dear Mr. Weston:

It is with genuine pleasure that I enclose our new agreement to use extensive advertising linage in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph during the coming twelve months.

Our former experience in your paper, and the rapid and consistent progress it is making, justify the highest confidence on the part of this organization that the volume of its business will be substantially benefited during the term of this agreement.

Sears, Roebuck and Company, a large national consumer of products from the Pittsburgh territory, finds here in turn an increasing local market for its wares, and we are glad to be linked with your medium to share in the returning prosperity which is bound to come to this region and which we believe cannot now be long delayed.

Very truly yours,
SEARS, ROEBUCK AND COMPANY.
By: Manager.

The letter from Sears, Roebuck & Co., which we reproduce here, is a convincing indication of their faith in the return of prosperity to Pittsburgh, and of their confidence in the value of this newspaper to help them secure their share of it.

Like the ever-widening circles which follow the tossing of a stone into a still pool Prosperity spreads from a concentrated stimulus. Now is the time for all industry to make a united effort.

The following list indicates the broad scope of the tremendous purchasing power of this nation-wide organization which annually pours millions of dollars into the workshops and payrolls of the Pittsburgh area.

LISTENING IN—With the Radio Editor

B. A. ROLFE is back on the air. The rotund radio maestro returns with a 35-piece orchestra playing everything from dance music to light concert selections in a new program starting tonight at 8:30 on KDKA. He will be heard regularly hereafter each Thursday and Friday night. Rolfe has built his new organization of musicians with great care and says he is very proud of it. He intends to show he can produce something else besides fast-tempo dance music by demonstrating wide tonal shadings and smooth symphonic rhythms.

Mr. Rolfe

Until advised by his physician recently to take a vacation, Rolfe had been broadcasting continuously over NBC networks for seven years. Before his broadcasting days he was a motion picture producer, although he displayed his musical leanings early in life as "the boy trumpet wonder" soloist with the late John Philip Sousa at the age of 10.

Another old-time favorite, under a new name, returns to KDKA tonight at 9:30 when the folks of Thompkins Corners resume broadcasting over an NBC network. As "Real Folks," they have been heard on the CBS chain. George Frame Brown, creator and director, continues in the leading role of Matt Thompkins.

Program Pointers

ELSA ERSI, attractive European actress, again appears as guest artist on the International Revue over WJAS tonight at 9 when a scene from a famous Vienna night club is reproduced. Miss Ersi, who has been heard on several programs of continental tone recently, sings "Dont Ask Me Why," an amusing melody by Stolz, and the typical "Viennese Drinking Song." Romantic Viennese music with emphasis on the string instruments, is played by Sam Lanin and his Orchestra, and includes "Merry Widow Waltz," "Goodbye Little Captain of My Heart" and "Two Hearts in ¾ Time."

Miss Ersi

When the "Magic Carpet" with Walter Winchell at the helm, floats about at 10 over WCAE, it hovers over Buffalo, for the music of Jack Valentine and his Orchestra, and over Chicago for Ted Weems' Band. The program includes a talk by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York.

Speakers in behalf of the "Family-Help-Family" campaign on Pittsburgh stations today are Senator Frank Harris, originator of the plan, over WJAS at 7:15 p. m.; James Francis Burke over WCAE at 4:15; Ella Graubart, Pittsburgh attorney, over KDKA at 1:30; Mrs. Lois McBride over KQV at 6:15, and Mary Philip Matthews over WWSW at 8:20 p. m.

Mrs. Lowell Thomas, wife of the noted author and radio speaker, is the guest of Allie Lowe Miles Bath Club interviewer at 8 over WJAS.

Rudy Vallee and Ray Perkins have as guest artists at 8 over WCAE. The Foursome, a cowboy minstrel quartet. The program originates in Baltimore.

Lost golf balls and broken clubs cause more than a little bit of excitement when Henry, the KQV janitor, and Mr. Cooper get together for a little game on KQV at 8:30.

Two of Walter Donaldson's earlier songs, "You're a Million Miles from Nowhere" and "Sweet Hortense," are sung by Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit over KDKA at 9.

Dr. John H. Finley, well-known New York editor, speaks on "Scotland's Predestination of America" over WCAE at 7.

Simon Benach, internationally known authority on permanent waving, speaks on KDKA's style and shopping program tomorrow at 9:15 a. m.

The Boswell Sisters have started to collect fans' photos . . . and unless you have a snapshot of something like that of yourself handy, don't ask them for one of their pictures, because they'll probably ask for yours by return mail.

Col. Stoopnagle and Budd start a vaudeville tour soon, to include an engagement at Loew's Penn Theater the week of April 22. In their act they depict all of their air features, including imitations of Calvin Coolidge, Al Smith, Cab Calloway, Bing Crosby and Rudy Vallee.

MARIE MOSS, the little WCAE pianist who only comes up to here, plays her own arrangements of popular music and is one of the tiniest little transposers ever. She is crazy about music and when a child never played with a doll but always had a little toy piano. She plays every day in a Downtown musical corner, is heard in a regular program over WCAE, Pianistic Tidbits, and is often featured in special station programs.

Miss Moss

Jessica Dragonette, who was born in India, is a great admirer of Gandhi, who, she says, is probably trusted by the natives because they can see he has nothing up his sleeve.

Question Box

Is Jack Benny, the stage comedian playing in "Easy Aces," the bridge broadcast on WJAS? It sounds to me like Jack and the girl who played in his vaudeville act, R. B. V. Bellevue.

No, it is not Jack Benny. He is Ace Goodman—and that's really his name. He is a Kansas City newspaperman, Mrs. Goodman is Mrs. Ace.

PROBLEMS FACE M. E. GENERAL CONFERENCE

17 District Delegates Will Attend Session Opening In Atlantic City May 2

Seventeen ministerial and lay delegates of Western Pennsylvania will be among 850 participating in the thirty-first general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church which opens in Atlantic City May 2.

Among the problems confronting the conference will be the proposal to restrict terms of bishops now elected for life, to eight years, to make district superintendents elective by the annual district conferences, instead of appointed by the bishop, and administrative and missionary questions growing out of world-wide economic conditions.

Ministerial delegates from this district are Albert E. Day, Bennett W. Hutchinson, Jacob S. Payton, Walter S. Trosh, Ralph B. Urmy and William L. Wilkenson, of Pittsburgh, and vicinity; C. G. Farr, New Castle; Frank B. McKnight, Erie; Freeman M. Rediger, DuBois.

Lay delegates are Elmer L. Kidney, P. W. Morgan and John W. Vickerman, of Pittsburgh; W. A. Elliott, Meadville; Leo H. McKay, Sharon; W. M. Pierce, Ridgway; W. A. Womer, New Castle; E. T. Chamberlin, Uniontown.

Secret Service Fake Brings Jail Term

Howard M. Ramsey, 53, a former railroader of Conway, Pa., pleaded guilty in Federal Court of impersonating a United States secret service operative and was sentenced by Judge Nelson McVicar to two months in jail. Under such fraudulent representation he cashed a worthless check for $50, the court was told.

The court was also shown a badge Ramsey wore, the front reading "Secret Service" and the back "Made in Germany."

Don't let them count you out!

Better still—why not bring out the hidden beauty in your skin

'I am so happy my skin is now clear'

You, too, may have a clear, smooth skin

"When old friends neglected me ... and new friends were harder to make ... I had sense enough to know something had to be done to clear up my skin.

"Happily, I heard about S.S.S. and put it to the test. It was not long before I could see an improvement—now I am simply overjoyed—I not only have a clear skin, but my system is strengthened, too, and again I mingle with my friends and associates with confidence."

Beneficial results come from within

Medical authorities say that skin troubles commonly manifest themselves when the system is in a weakened and "run-down" condition ... that the skin must have a ratio of body balance ... must have resistance from within.

In a large degree this resistance is measured by the hemoglobin content of the blood and the number of rich, red-cells it contains. They are the workers that carry nourishment and oxygen throughout the body ... also they remove the poisonous carbon dioxide. Upon their strength and number largely depends the body's vitality ... its resistance against infection and disease.

When these precious red-blood-cells are lowered in number, due to overwork, worry, colds, sickness, or dietary neglect, the system suffers ... usually lowered blood count is symptomed by quick fatigue, lack of appetite, pimples, boils, paleness, or other evidences of a "run-down" condition. Dangerous consequences often follow the neglect of a lowered blood count.

S.S.S. gives New Strength

If you require a tonic you should by all means try S.S.S.—this long established medicine acts by stimulating the secretions of the stomach ... reviving the appetite ... aiding digestion ... regenerating hemoglobin ... restoring the red-blood-cells—and builds greater resistance against infection and disease.

S.S.S. helpfulness is illustrated by this fact—our records show that nearly one-half of those who have taken it, for the first time, do so upon the recommendation of some friend who has been benefited. Can there be any stronger recommendation for its merit and usefulness than this?

A distinctive thing about S.S.S. is that it is made from fresh roots, barks and herbs ... it is readily absorbed by the system. Another thing is that its efficiency has been proved by scientific tests and by its use for more than 100 years. It is a safe Tonic to take.

S. S. S. is an economical way to health. Try it yourself. Get S.S.S. from any drug store. In two sizes: regular and double—the latter is more economical and is sufficient for a two weeks' treatment. It may be the means of bringing better health and happiness to you.

Get both of these Free

Would you like a helpful Health Booklet on the Blood and a trial sample of the modern, sure laxative, KLOK-LAX? If so, write your name and address across this ad and mail to The S.S.S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.

S.S.S. builds sturdy health

Lack of Party Backing Marks Campaign

—By MARK SHIELDS—

Mark Shields

Primary election day is less than two weeks away, but both Regulars and Independents in the Republican party are maintaining a marked reticence as to indorsements in the various legislative districts. Candidates hoping for indorsement by one side or the other have shopped indefatigably, but with few grains of comfort.

In the Thirteenth District the Independents have picked four favored sons. In the Twelfth District the organization is understood to favor Thomas W. Neely, of Sewickley, and William L. Brown, of Tarentum, a bid for both wet and dry sentiment, Neely being dry and Brown wet. In the Third District the organization elements faithful to Senator James J. Coyne are supporting Charles T. Dwyer, and it is understood that in the Fifth favor of the Regulars has fallen upon the shoulders of Representative Max Spann.

There has been, however, nothing savoring of official indorsements from downtown headquarters except in the case of the four Independents in the South Hills. That does not mean there will not be.

The real reason for this dilatoriness is the inability of all factions to get together in harmony. In some districts the organization will not care about the preference of the downtown headquarters, this being especially marked outside the city.

And any centralized Independent leadership was flouted some time ago when Commissioners Charles C. McGovern and C. M. Barr failed to sit down to the subject and endeavor to avoid the conflict of candidacies which now plagues the great moral movement in sections where actually there is a majority independent sentiment.

Campaign Fund Contributors Scarce

The matter of campaign funds is bothering both Regulars and Independents. The former must depend mainly on persons with money this year, and is finding that type of patriot scarce among its usual contributors. It has not either the state or county payroll to draw on.

Independents never have been able to get large individual contributions, a fact which places them in no worse position this election than the Regulars. But the Independents do have the state payroll, which will contribute its 2 per cent to the Pinchot-Butler-Flinn campaign, or else.

There is no assessment. "Voluntary contributions" are being made, but there is a remarkable coincidence in the 2-percentedness of these contributions, and the fact that collectors have been named in most of the state departments. It is merely a disguised assessment, such as occurred in 1930 in the Hemphill-Pinchot fight.

In that campaign State Chairman Edward Martin, sincerely fighting for Pinchot, found funds low. He wanted to tap the payroll, a natural resort. But there was remembrance that in his former gubernatorial campaign Gov. Pinchot had set his face against assessments, and had made that a principle of his administration.

However, there were conferences. The Governor put forth a statement that he had no objection to any state employe "contributing" to his state campaign. Whereupon there was a parley of one of the Governor's chief aides with a man extremely close to Gen. Martin. Gov. Fisher gave the proposition his blessing with the understanding that Mr. Pinchot knew of it, and state employes gave up 3 per cent with the impression that it not only made them stand well with the current administration, but that their generosity would be scanned by the new.

This, however, is a depression year, so the "voluntary contributions" are only 2 per cent, instead of 3. Life has its compensations.

Candidates' Ranking In First 3 Districts

Following is the order in which names of candidates will appear on the ballot in the first three legislative districts. Where a party has no more candidates than there are members to be nominated the names are not mentioned, though an exception is made to point out that in the Second District the two Socialist candidates are Anna and John Ban, both of 241 Fifty-seventh street. The list:

Murder of the Night Club Lady

—By Anthony Abbot

CHAPTER I.

Precisely at 11:30 o'clock on that snow-blown New Year's Eve, Thatcher Colt reached the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Through the revolving doors in East Forty-sixth street hastened the police commissioner, immaculate in evening array and top hat. His large black eyes brightened when he found me waiting for him in the tiny red foyer.

"Sorry to pull you away from your family celebration, Tony," he apologized. "Hope your wife isn't cross with me for ringing you up?"

"We both realized it must be something exciting."

As the chief loosened his silken muffler, his black eyes flashed at me a gleam of rueful mistrust.

"May be only a false alarm," he warned. "I was alone at home when Dougherty telephoned. The District Attorney was more than usually excited. Implored me to come at once—to the dancing club downstairs."

"Wouldn't the D. A. tell you what it was about?"

"Swore he didn't dare—over the wire . . . You don't suppose this could be another of Dougherty's efforts to rope me in on one of his everlasting parties?"

As I looked at Thatcher Colt, tall, slender, black-haired, Miami-tanned, I felt a twinge of sympathy. True, the Police Commissioner of New York was not a party man. But Manhattan's favorite bachelor had not always been bored by social frivolities. His monastic life began only after the fickle lady of his fancy ran off with a contract champion. Since then Thatcher Colt had lost interest in his old world of gaiety and fashion. Born to money and social position, he put aside all distractions when he accepted the appointment as Police Commissioner. With an eagerness that was like an obsession, he plunged into the department work and of the 19,000 policemen he commanded, Thatcher Colt was the best all-around athlete, the hardest worker, the most invincible crook-hunter.

A GAY PLACE

Neither of us dreamed how brief our stay was to be, as we briskly descended the staircase at our right. A flight of red-carpeted steps led down under the pavement level of the fashionable East Side. From below rose the whine and croon of an orchestra, beating regularly through a vast discord of party voices. It was New Year's Eve at Mayfair.

Like nothing else in all New York is the dancing club Mayfair. At midnight every Saturday during the season the stars of the theater and cinema gather with prize-fighters, song writers, theatrical agents, stock brokers and such in the Crystal Room of the Ritz. Here the ladies and gentlemen of the amusement world triumphantly display their gentility, until the atmosphere of refinement is almost painful.

While the coatroom girl garnered our dampened overcoats and top hats, we looked through the arched doorway into the Crystal Room. All was decoriously festive within that expanse of mirrors, crystals, jewels and lights. The shows were out, and the players had changed costumes and makeup

Jimmy Durante Brings Famous 'Schnozzle' Here; Bashful About Nose

The most famous nose in the country arrived in Pittsburgh today, accompanied by its owner, Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, the lunatic of the stage, night clubs and talkies.

His entrance to the city was calm, except for arriving on the wrong train, bumping his famed schnozzle on a taxicab door and greeting all the redcaps at the Pennsylvania individually, collectively and enthusiastically.

Did he have a message for the good people of Pittsburgh? Yes:

"Tell all my admirables I'm here to speak the very best of English at Loew's Penn Theater for a week. I am very sensitive about my nose. Don't say anything about my nose. I had it insured for five million—make it six million. I don't like odd numbers.

"Hey, you know something. When I played Minneapolis the opposition house booked in 'Cyrano de Bergerac' and I outdrew 'em by eight grand. Hotcha!"

Father Cox to Speak At Etna Elks' Show

The Rev. James R. Cox, Hunger March leader, will be the chief speaker and guest of honor at the combination dance and vaudeville show at the Etna Elks Hall, Butler street, Etna, tonight. The affair is sponsored by the employes of Etna Borough and for the benefit of the borough's unemployed. Burgess Lee Donaldson is in charge of the affair.

POLICE WOUND KILLS BOY, 16

Michael Delgrosso, 16-year-old Westinghouse High School boy, of 702 Larimer avenue, wounded by a patrolman early Monday while attempting to enter a Larimer avenue chain store, died shortly after 4 o'clock this morning in Pittsburgh Hospital.

He was the second youth in five days to die from gun wounds inflicted by policemen in alleged perpetration of robberies. Joseph McAfee, 18, of 413 North Aiken avenue, died early Saturday in West Penn Hospital. He was shot last Friday while fleeing from an alleged stolen car in East Liberty.

Delgrosso's companion, Anthony LaPopa, 17, of Thompson street, who was shot at the same time as Delgrosso, is in Belvedere Hospital. Both youths were shot by Patrolman Albert Bucks, who said he surprised them forcing a rear window in an A. & P. store at 712 Larimer avenue.

JOBS FOR 210 CREATED BY COUNTY

Salary Board Finds Work For Many Instead of Making Predicted Cuts

The Allegheny County Salary Board, which was reported to be ready to pare salaries, has created jobs for 210 persons, nearly all of whom are now drawing salaries ranging from 50 cents an hour to $10 a day.

Wage cuts to reduce the County expenditures were predicted by the new County Commissioners when the Salary Board met. That board, composed of the three commissioners and the County Controller, met on April 1 and created 210 jobs, 195 of which have been filled.

NEW JOBS LISTED

The new jobs created follow:

Eight vote machine custodians, $10 per day, $2,000.

Eight proof readers, $6 per day, $1 an hour overtime, $1,600.

Five laborers to handle vote machines, 50 cents per hour, $500.

One hundred sub assessors, $5 per day.

Ten assessment stenographers, $5 per day.

Four office assessment clerks, $10 per day.

Fourteen jury-list clerks, $5 per day.

One jury list clerk, $6 per day.

The 160 sub assessors in the Board for the Revision and Assessment of Taxes are making a special investigation of assessments. The task was expected to consume only a week and $15,000 was set up for the work, but it has dragged out and there is an apparent deficit of $11,700 now.

The assessors with stenographers and office help went to work March 17, although the Salary Board did not approve the matter until April 1.

Exclusive of the jury list clerks, the expenditure amounts to about $30,800. Clerks for the jury list have not yet been assigned. Their jobs will last about five months.

'Change' We Need Is to Be Allowed To Keep Change

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Democrats are brooming the country in the prelims for the national conventions.

Rhode Island is Democratic (high tide). Vermont may also string along because Cal is determined to age in the woods.

Cal doesn't want the presidency this time. He's looking at the Potomac and singing, "River, Stay Away from My Door."

We're not so rampant about a change of administrations as we are about an administration that will let us keep some change.

But Cal is too smart to step in there in November and open the accumulated mail.

If the next President is smart he will take our advice and refuse the nomination.

Retail Food Survey Report Being Prepared by Federal Director

Results of the Pittsburgh retail food survey today were being prepared in report form at Washington by G. E. Bittner, of the United States Department of Commerce, bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, who directed the work here during the past six months for the government in conjunction with the Pittsburgh Food Council.

Two local agencies, the Allegheny County Retail Grocers' Association and F. L. Anderson, merchandising counselor of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, are providing all interested grocers with information on practical application of the results developed in buying, pricing, stock control and in store layout.

Several stores were rearranged by the government experts, including the C. A. Pilgrim store, at 3947 Mintwood street. Mr. Pilgrim today reported that due to the modern system established, he is better acquainted with details of his own business and operates on a more efficient basis.

ENGINEER SIFTS UNDERGROUND LOOP PLANS

Report Due in Few Days When Hearings of Civic Backers Will Resume

The Transit Commission will have complete charge of the planning and construction of the subway, provided City Council approves the project, according to the provisions of the act of Assembly which created the commission.

The act gives the Transit Commission executive as well as planning power. Its engineer, Winters Haydock, is studying the construction plans and cost estimates presented to City Council by Norman F. Brown and Edward Snodgrass, Jr. Haydock said last night he would not have a report for several days.

Hearings for civic organizations interested in the subway project have been postponed until after the Transit Commission makes its report. A check on Brown's figures made by Charles M. Reppert, chief city engineer, is being studied today by Director Edward G. Lang of the Department of Public Works.

COSTS DISCUSSED

Reppert said his study revealed the subway could be built within the amount of the $6,000,000 bond issue. Whether his estimate was more or less than Brown's, he did not say.

A contract for a two-track subway was awarded in Philadelphia in April, 1930. This contract included 4,565 feet of subway, three stations and some under-pinning of buildings for a total of $3,868,988. This is at the rate of about $847.50 a foot.

The Brown-Snodgrass subway includes about 8,200 feet of double-track tube. At the rate of the Philadelphia contract it would cost approximately $6,900,000. However, a decrease of 20 per cent in construction prices must be applied to the 1930 figure, Reppert said. This would bring the price down to about $5,500,000, which was Brown's estimate.

RIVER WALL PLANS

Director Lang and Reppert presented their plans for a river wall to Maj. W. D. Styer of the United States Engineers yesterday. They were told that a public hearing would be necessary for the navigation interests.

The river wall plan developed by Reppert would include two levels, a lower level for wharfing purpose and a platform resting on columns and an arched wall to provide parking space. It would not offer flood protection.

Consideration of the improvement of the wharves from the standpoint of increased parking will be given by the Better Traffic Committee today at 1:30 p. m. at Council chambers. Frank L. Duggan will preside.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 7.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Australia, a great horse country, finally produced what looked like the "super-horse." He came 10,000 miles and won in a gallop. He received as great an ovation as he had ever received winning at home. He is dead. Horse lovers the world over sympathize with Australia. Mr. Wolfe, the Australian sports writer that accompanied him here, was out to see me last week he talked of him like he was human. No one could possibly have brought on his death. Our foreign friends can accuse us of lots of things, but no; giving a foreign contestant, be he man or animal, a fair chance is not one of them. It's too bad, Australia. Phar Lap was just a horse, but he brought you honor and represented you nobly, for you never saw a good horse grow where a good man didn't grow.

Yours, WILL.

MOTOR DISPLAY EXCEEDS ALL FORECASTS

Vast Attendance Indicates Increased Interest in Activity of Industry

International News Service

DETROIT, April 7. — Results of the exhibits being held by General Motors in 55 cities in United States and Canada to stimulate business have exceeded expectations, Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors Corporation, said in a statement today.

Actual sales made, the buying mood evidenced, and the attendance are even better than anticipated," Sloan said.

INTEREST GROWS

"Unquestionably an enhanced interest in new automobiles has been created by the activity of the industry as evidenced in part by these General Motors exhibits. It has further shown that people desire new cars and are willing to buy when their interest has been captured.

"It is by such ventures on a nation-wide scale that the automotive industry has led this country into prosperity in the past—and that is the primary aim of the industry in the present effort. Manufacturers, dealers—every one of the million direct and indirect employed by this great industry—all are working toward that end."

Attendance for the first five days of the show led General Motors officials to estimate at least 3,500,000 persons will view the exhibits by closing time Saturday night.

Exhibit Here Draws Industrial Leaders

Pittsburgh's industrial, financial thousands of interested spectators and civic leaders are among the daily visiting the elaborate trade-stimulating exhibit of General Motors being held this week in Motor Square Garden as part of the national campaign to revive the automobile industry and create new positions for workers in that and allied industries.

A special display of huge posters sponsored by local banks laud the effort. The local show, open daily from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. and free to the public, is one of 55 similar expositions being held simultaneously throughout the country.

Record sales were reported at the show yesterday, according to the general chairman, J. A. Kenyon.

Pittsburgh's largest crowd is anticipated tomorrow night when an automobile electric refrigerator, vacuum cleaner and cart kit will be presented as gifts at drawings scheduled at 8 o'clock. Every visitor at the show is given the opportunity to share in the gifts. The drawings will take place in Beatty street, between Baum boulevard and Center avenue, while loud speakers will carry the program to the throngs inside the Garden. Special lights will illuminate the scene.

OUSTED CHIEF ACCUSES 3

Informations charging conspiracy to indict have been made against County Detective Samuel Riddle, Justice of the Peace George Kaszer and Burgess F. C. Gangloff, all of Coraopolis, by the ousted borough police chief, Leonard Kieszek.

Kaszer and Riddle were released on their own recognizance after warrants from Justice of the Peace Edward H. Hayes, of Imperial, were served on them, but Gangloff said last night no constable had "seen him." The hearings are scheduled for Monday night.

Kieszak, fired by the borough council on Gangloff's charges, avers his dismissal was a "frame-up."

Accountants Hear Tax Increase Urged

A balanced federal budget was urged and a large bond issue was opposed by Representative William C. Hawley, of Oregon, last night at a joint meeting of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the National Association of Cost Accountants in the Keystone Club.

The Congressman said too much money needed by industries was invested in tax-free government securities. He urged a balanced budget to save the country's credit.

Punched, Man Sues Victor McLaglen

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—(AP.)—Victor McLaglen, film actor, was sued yesterday by Thomas R. W. Hughes, 48, for $10,000 for a punch on the nose.

Hughes alleged that on last January 29, while at the studios where McLaglen was working, the actor attacked him and beat him without provocation. He said his nose was fractured and has failed to regain its normal appearance, and that he has difficulty in breathing.

ARMSTRONG'S ESTATE VALUED AT $201,583

The late Joseph G. Armstrong, former chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, would have had a fortune of nearly $700,000 if had liquidated his estate in 1929 when the prices for stocks were near their peak levels.

At the time of his death, November 19, his estate was valued at $201,583 in the inventory and appraisement filed in the Register's office. Stock prices have declined substantially since then, so that an appraisal at present quotations would show further shrinkage.

The largest single item in the inventory was 600 shares of United States Steel Corporation, worth about $65 a share on the day of his death. Its high in 1929 was $261.75 and today it is worth about $34 a share.

The holdings of the estate consisted largely of leading common issues. A checking account in the Mellon National Bank totaled $15,386.42. The larger items in the inventory were:

Boulevard Progress Seen by Mansfield

A definite report on the Allegheny River boulevard will be ready next week, according to County Commissioner W. D. Mansfield.

Mansfield, at the Commissioners' meeting yesterday, said that he has been "making progress" with his discussion of the boulevard project with officials of the Pennsylvania Water Company. Completion of the boulevard was held up because of the water company's demands for compensation for the right-of-way through their property.

A conference between the members of the Pittsburgh Butter and Egg Exchange and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt will be held soon to discuss legislation affecting peddlers and hucksters.

English said a recent audit conducted by Controller James P. Kerr, of the society's activities, disclosed that the money given by the city was not being spent as the agreement stipulated.

Prophecy

I have no doubt that I am not the one
To win your heart—the trappings of romance
Are strange to me—and things that I have done
Have killed your love and spoiled my ev'ry chance.
I have no doubt that when I take my leave
You'll heave a deep and strangely blissful sigh.
And yet I have the courage to believe
That I will leave a spark that will not die.

You claim today that all your love is dead.
That any words I say are all too late.
But ancient thoughts will dance around your bed.
When I have left you to a better fate.
And he who holds you arrogant and glad

Dumb Like a Chorus Girl

Dick Spencer, the caricaturist, tells of a village idiot named MacGregor who was always shown off to the newcomers. They were always instructed:

"Put a nickel and a dime in your hand and tell him that he can have either one, and see what happens."

Finally a sympathizer tried to wise him up.

"Lissen here, MacGregor," said the pitying one, "fool them the next time and take the dime."

"Aw, no," replied the alleged sap, "if I take the dime—then they'll quit doin' it!"

Merciless Truth

Hehehch

One of the clowns was saying that the business of giving the President a salute of 21 guns has always been a failure.

"Why?" bit one of us.

On the Cynic Railway

It is Sid Perrin's poke, but it could have happened with times being what they are. Sid asserts two wire clerks on Wall street were keeping the lines busy, gabbing as usual about blondes instead of bonds, when suddenly one of them yelled:

"Hold it a minute—I just got an order!"

"Cash?" snapped the other. "Wet or without mustard?"

Adding Insult

Errol A. man rode the silly about the Hollywood movie outfit which was making an old-fashioned silent—a Western. During the filming a huge boulder accidentally rolled off the mountain side, near the scene and struck the leading man on his alleged head.

"Oh!" he screamed painfully, "I'm killed!"

"Stop your yelling," snapped the director, "we're not using sound!"

Nifties

Kenneth Mackay of Hollywood, reports that a war out there has revived the "screen-o-grams" trick by using the names of stars like this:

"Aw, quit your Keaton!"

One of the better ones, however, is:

"Life is just a Pola Negris."

Imagine

Over at the Columbia Broadcasting Station they knew the musician who, having imbibed too freely, proceeded to drive his own car home anyway. As he neared his dwelling he struck a woman and, then fearing the worst, he stepped on the gas and kept going.

After driving around town for a few hours—until he sobered—he parked the machine a few miles away and then taxied home.

Upon his arrival at his shack he discovered his wife sitting up for him. "Now, what's your excuse?" she asked.

"Honey," he began, "I couldn't help it. I accidentally hit a woman with the car and was so scared I kept going."

"You're telling me?" she barked, as she revealed the bruises on her form.

Kidding the Kidders

Straphanger: "It's pretty rotten—having to wait so long for a seat, isn't it?"

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Add Similes: Alexander Woollcott: Tantalizing as a bit of lamp-lit melodrama glimpsed through a tenement window from a passing train. Henry Seidel Canby: There is no worse advertising than bad speaking—it is like the scent of the fox, the bearer cannot escape from it, all the neighborhood is aware. Arthur "Bugs" Baer: Pinned down like butterfly wings. Anon: Hang on like a lawyer to a receivership. K. S. Crighton: Ugly as malice. Will Rogers: Blue as a New York buyer. Ralph Wilk: As bashful as a Hollywood party-crasher. George Jean Nathan: Happy as a critic with a night off.

A Form of Criticism

The talking movies are said to be in their infancy, but you'd never suspect it by most of the dialogue.

Oh, Of Course!

Sotto Voce

Mildred Harlan: I'm sure you're mistaken.

Maude Thorpe: Love In Manhattan.

By Way of Report

Author Leon Samson's new tome belittles C. W. Wilcox the magazine essayist, because he selected the following items from one of these pillars many, many editions ago and offered them as an example of good gossip. The items were as follows:

The Dudley Field Malones (she was Edna Johnson, of Ziegfeld's "Louie, the 4teenth"), anticipate a blessed event in Dec. Peggy ("Flying High") Mosely, an eyeful, will Lohengrin it with a Wall St. lad who has plenty. It's a lad over at the Langdon Post's. The Irving Netchers were secretly blested in Chi. last wk. His new heart sails with him on the Ile this wk. Rosie Dolly (catch on?) sails on the Ile this wk."

Mr. Samson couldn't have poked ridicule at a better list of items. All of them have proved to be facts.

Laugh Girl

Polly Moran, the girl who goes after the laughs, will be seen in the Penn, beginning Friday, in the film, "The Passionate Plumber."

'Had Never Haard of Them,' Said Rose Coghlan Of Entire Cast

By GEORGE SEIBEL

The news that Rose Coghlan has died at the age of 81, practically in poverty and mental eclipse, revives many memories of an actress who once was a renowned beauty and a brilliant theatrical star. When she retired in 1922 she had been on the stage for 52 years. Her last role was a minor one in David Belasco's production of "Debureau," in which Lionel Atwill starred—that was in 1921. For some years before that Rose Coghlan had been on the outer fringe of the profession, and had grown far away from its modern exponents and their stage methods.

My only acquaintance with Rose Coghlan was when she was engaged to play a part in a play I had written. Every member of the cast was in awe of Rose Coghlan when she appeared at the rehearsal. Of course she arrived late. We stood in the wings, watching the other members of the cast and the stage manager.

Mr. Selbel

With her lorgnette Rose eyed one after the other. "Who's that?" she would ask. "That's Mr. A.—he plays the Doctor." "Never haard of him," and she turned her lorgnette upon another of the group. "Who's that young person?" "That's Miss B.—she plays the sister." "Never haard of her, never haard of any of them."

REWROTE HER PART

Her memory had become very poor and the other players never knew what she would say during the performance. She rewrote her part every night between Hartford and Washington; the director finally told me. She could always improvise to get herself out of the hole, but she generally left the other players straddled without a cue.

She had never "haard" of them, but all of them had haard of her. Since she came to this country from England, where she made her debut at 18 as one of the Witches in "Macbeth," she had been among the most popular of American stars. She was the leading woman of the famous Lester Wallack stock company and, perhaps the best Lady Teazle that ever played in America. She made a great hit as the adventuress, Countess Zicka, in Sardou's "Diplomacy," as Lady Gay Spanker in Boucicault's "London Assurance," and as Lady Clare in George Ohnet's "Ironmaster."

BROTHER ALSO FAMOUS

Her brother, Charles Coghlan, was equally famous, and together they appeared in a drama called "The Royal Box," which Charles had adapted from a play by Dumas called "Kean."

Charles lost his life in the Galveston flood—Rose lingered on until her beauty was shriveled and her fame was dimmed. She had appeared in the most famous all-star cast of "Hamlet" with Booth, Barrett and Modjeska, as the Player Queen, a part that should be taken by a boy. She had been a member of the New Theater Company and she had starred in "Mrs. Warren's Profession."

When Wallack's Theater was torn down in 1915 she appeared on the stage as Lady Teazle and read the last lines of that part as a historic farewell. A year after her retirement it became known that she was in poverty and ill health, and a great benefit performance was arranged which brought her $10,000 and enabled her to find a home until the last call came.

I'm afraid that when she walks up to the heavenly box-office she will ask some fellow traveler, "Who's that fellow with the long beard over at the door?" and when she is told "that's St. Peter," she will eye him with her lorgnette and say,

"Never haard of him."

Durante and His Nose Coming in Person

Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, the comedian whose nose is his fortune, and who comes to both the Penn stage and screen tomorrow, once was a noted New York cabaret performer. He will do the personal-appearing act behind the foothights and will help Polly Moran and Buster Keaton with the funny stuff in the film, "The Passionate Plumber." Durante was born on New York's East Side, played the night clubs when he grew older, and first landed in the theater in "Show Girl." Recently he's been putting the comedy into the movies.

I WAS a business girl like thousands of others you pass on the streets and subway in New York.

I was on my own . . . living my own life . . . with my own "bachelor apartment." I could play around all I wanted. Lots of parties . . . loads of men. Why should I marry?

Marriage certainly wouldn't give me any more good times than I was having. And it might bring more "headaches" than happiness.

Then Wally came along! Wally was stunning looking. He always had loads of money and he "sat lavished it on me right and left. The glamor and the good times went to my head, I guess. Before I had known him six weeks I broke my vow and married him.

Within three days there came the awful awakening. I had been terribly tricked—deceived!

My job was gone—my faith destroyed. And I was tied to a husband with whom I was ashamed to face the world!

My old convictions came back to me. Should I have stayed Happily Unmarried? Or could I take one desperate chance to make my marriage a success?

What was the chance this play girl took to build happiness out of despair? See—

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

STILL ANOTHER gambling story that may tickle you if you're in the mood concerns a middle-aged clothing man who suddenly went Broadway. After years of diligent work and concentration on his business, he sat up one night and pounced upon the idea that he'd like to have a little fun for himself. Not knowing any better, he figured that Broadway was synonymous with fun. And that's where he began to play.

Within a few weeks he was associating with some very crooked people in a very honest way. It gave him a genuine kick to sit around with the hard-faced boys and think that he understood the things they were talking about. And his heart bounced with emotion when some cafe cutie said she hadn't paid her room rent, but that she wouldn't think of taking any money from him because he was such a wonderful man. Yes, indeed.

In other words, Sam was something of a dope. He had a wife, two sweet kids, a home and a fairly prosperous business. Overnight, for no sensible reason that anyone could detect, he was on the verge of tossing everything aside. Slowly, but surely, he was studying to become a half-wit.

Enter the gambling element. As they sat around one night one of the boys suggested that they run over to a dice game and toss a little dough away. The rest agreed to the idea. And Sam felt that he would like to go along, too.

"I never shot crap in my life, boys," he asserted, "but it's never too late to learn. I won't play but I'd like to stand around and watch. Maybe, if I get the hang of the thing, I'll stake a few dollars on one of you fellows. Let's go."

They went—and that night ruined whatever chance Sam had left to settle back in his old routine. He watched the game for an hour, and then he played for three. And when he left, he carried away a trifle less than $5,000 as his winnings.

Sam was exactly like the stock sucker who, in the good old days, saw his stocks jump a few points and thought it would go on that way forever. As he sat in a restaurant a short time later he explained his new theories.

"Boys," he cried, "I'm through with my business. What's the use of slaving away in a clothing concern when I can make money as easily as I did tonight? I love that dice game. Will you fellows take me back tomorrow night?"

You can tell by his conversation that Sam was a million to one to wind up behind the eight ball. After two or three more gambling sessions the man became something of a nut on the subject of the little cubes. He wanted to play at all times. And he was forever calling his Broadway pals and asking them to guide him to new spots.

"I'd like to get into one of the real big games," he chirped. "I'm a real gambler, and I'd be willing to stake everything in the right spot. Can't it be arranged?"

The following afternoon he got what he asked for. One of the racketeers dropped into his office and handed him a card with an address upon it.

"Sam," he murmured, "I've always liked you for the good sport that you are. I'm going to send you over to the biggest game that's now running in the East. Here's the spot. It's over in Jersey, but it won't take you long to get there.

"They used to have the game in one of the hotels around here, but the cops got a little tough. So they're operating across the river now—and how they're operating! There's no limit on what you can win if you're lucky.

"Get there around 10 tonight and ask for Charlie. You won't have any trouble."

The clothing man was properly grateful.

"This is swell of you, Joe," he cried. "I won't forget your kindness."

The racketeer tossed it off.

At 10 o'clock the clothing man was ringing the bell at the spot in question. He followed the racketeer's instructions and asked for Charlie. And a few minutes later Sam entered a room in which some 30 men were standing around a pool table.

Sam gasped. The racketeer had been quite correct. This was far and away the biggest game he had ever seen. Bets of $10,000 occurred time after time. After one roll of the dice, Sam saw one man hand out his I. O. U. for $50,000 and quit the game. He said quite casually that he had lost $130,000 that night.

The other players paid little or no attention to Sam. As a matter of fact, it was fully 15 minutes before he could get close enough to the table to get a bet down. But he finally made it, and he began to splurge.

With the excitement of the thing in his veins, he went far beyond his limit. Before he quite realized what had happened he had dropped $60,000 and had signed away the major portion of his business. He bit his lip and turned away. The players closed in and the game went on as before.

But Sam's gambling days were over. And the way he felt as he rode back to New York, his life was almost over, too . . .

About a week later, as he was walking up Broadway, a man hailed him. Sam recognized him immediately. It was the chap who had been standing next to him during the big game.

"Glad to see you again, partner," said the man cordially. "We sure had a lot of laughs out of that game, didn't we?"

"Laughs?" muttered Sam.

"Sure," cried the other man. "It ain't every day you can pick up 20 bucks for a coupla hours around a table. But only one thing puzzles me. I know some guy was gettin' clipped plenty, but there was so much dough bein' passed that I couldn't pick him out."

"Which one did you figure was the sucker?"

And, that's how Sam first learned that the entire game had been staged for him alone. The other players were nothing more than stooges, everything had been phony from the beginning—and he never had the slightest chance to do anything but lose.

Sweet?. . .

ONE OF THE town's characters is a retired bookmaker who was once in the very big money. He is growing older now, and he's content to sit around with his cronies and do little more than reminisce about the past.

They asked him the other night why he didn't go back into business again.

"What can you lose?" asked one man. "You can still take bets and you can still do plenty of business. More than that, you can certainly use the dough. Why not try it?"

"Times have changed too much," was his sage reply. "In the old days the bad man was good. Today even the good man is bad . . .

Plays and Players -:- By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

When "Grand Hotel" is presented in the Alvin next week the curtain will rise at eight-thirty promptly, meaning that the asbestos will ascend at 8:30 sharp. Folks not in seats will not be seated, meaning that folks not in their pews will not be permitted to disturb those who are and are watching the opening scene, said to be one of the most effective episodes in the play. You know, much of the punch of "Grand Hotel" is the rapidity with which its numerous scenes are telescoped into each other, and the opening sequence is in lightning flashes of illumination on a dark stage. Folks not on time will watch it from the rear. The curtain will rise at 30 minutes past eight—sharp! Folks not in—oh, yes, the star of "Grand Hotel" is Eugenie Leontovich, and the play is by Vicki Baum.

It seems we got the Collier girls mixed up when we stated that Constance Collier, who is coming to the Alvin in "Hay Fever" April 18, had appeared here earlier in the season in "Mrs. Moonlight." That was Kathryn Collier. "Hay Fever" will be the sixth and final play of the subscription season of the Professional Players.

Lew Leslie's Negro revue "Rhapsody In Black" which will return April 25 to the Alvin where it appeared last season prior to its New York engagement still features Ethel Waters, gifted singer of character songs. All of the high lights of the original company remain, including Cecil Mack's Choir and Pike Davis' Orchestra.

When Florenz Ziegfeld picked "Hot-Cha" as the name of his new production, now a hit in New York, he did something. The title has got the folks of what is called the Metropolis writing letters to the papers explaining its meaning and origin, which now total 11, and range linguistically from Indian and Italian to Harlemese.

'Freaks' on the Screen In Sheridan Square

FAIRER CHANCE DUE FIRST BASEMAN

ADMITTING THAT THE .211 batting average of Gus Suhr last year was disappointing, isn't there at least a possibility that both Suhr and the Pittsburgh club would be helped a great deal more if Gus were given some encouragement right now instead of being made to feel that he is a failure even before the season begins? Perhaps if Suhr, with a change in batting stance, were given a pat on the back it might assist him not a little in coming through. Certainly it isn't going to improve the situation to destroy his confidence rather than build it up.

Gus Suhr

Besides, it isn't fair to the player. Suhr deserves a better chance than is being given to him to make a new start this spring. Hack Wilson was a complete bust in 1931. Adam Comorosky also had a drab year. So did Tommy Thevenow, with a batting average only two points better than Suhr's. So did Johnny Frederick, Carl Reynolds, Fred Brickell and others. Yet in every case, critics and fans appear to take it for granted that the player will swing back into his stride this season, and they're giving him every encouragement to help him along. In common fairness, Suhr is entitled to the same kind of opportunity.

BUT INSTEAD ALL that Gus hears or reads is one suggestion after another that Pie Traynor or Ervin Brame or somebody else be shifted from his present place in the Pirate scheme of things to Suhr's post at first base. The wisdom of spoiling a great third baseman or a pitcher who will be needed in order to make a very ordinary first baseman is not apparent.

Suhr's place will be a great deal harder to fill than the well-meaning fans who are suggesting changes appear to realize. Gus won't be missed, and his defensive value won't be appreciated, until he's out of there. He is strong on ground balls as well as thrown ones, has a great arm, makes the first-to-second-to-first double play better than any other right-hand thrower among the major league first basemen, and all around, defensively, is the best right-hand first sacker the Pirates have had since the days of Kitty Bransfield.

POSSIBLY, IN THE end, Suhr will not give satisfaction as a hitter. But surely he would have a much better chance of doing so if he were given the support of the fans and allowed the full period of a spring test instead of being discouraged by hearing his scalp howled for before the season opens.

Time enough to condemn him when he has failed after another chance, if he is going to fail. And he isn't getting a fair chance when they're making him come up for 1932 with two strikes on him.

THERE IS NOT only Suhr to be considered in this matter of common fairness, but the club as well, for what hurts the individual must also hurt the team. It isn't going to help the situation to have Gus starting the season half-licked. Defense counts for something at that base, and a make-shift first sacker replacing Suhr might lose many more games through holding slips than he would win by superior hitting. And incidentally, with 23 to his credit in 30 practice games to date, the much criticised gateway guardian has batted in more runs than any other man on the club.

ONE OF THE most famous players of the old days in baseball is ill at his home in Chicago. He is Fred Pfeffer, once the king of second basemen, who, at the age of 72, is making a game fight for the recovery of his health.

Fred Pfeffer

Pfeffer starred on the Chicago White Stockings in the National League in the 80's under A. G. Spalding and Cap Anson. He joined that club in 1883 to play second base in the great infield that included also Anson at first base, Ed Williamson at shortstop and Tom Burns at third base.

PFEFFER PLAYED ON the White Stockings seven straight seasons, jumped to the Players League in 1890, returned to Anson's Colts in Chicago for 1891 and 1892, was with Louisville the next three years, with the Giants in 1896 and finished his big league career with Chicago in 1897.

Fred was not a heavy hitter, but as a fielder he was the greatest second sacker of his time. In one game in 1883 he handled 15 chances without an error, and in another contest in 1884 he accepted 16 without a slip. Those were records at that time. The present high mark for a second baseman is 18.

ONE OF PFEFFER'S teammates on the White Stockings in 1889 was John K. Tener, of Charleroi, former Governor of Pennsylvania. Among others who played on the Chicago club with Fred in earlier years were Rev. Billy Sunday, present evangelist, and the late Dr. Mark Baldwin, of this city. Tener and Baldwin also were among Pfeffer's mates on the Chicago club which, with another team called the All-Americans, made the first baseball tour of the world during the winter of 1888-89.

BILLY PETROLLE is to be given a chance to win two world championships. Jimmy Johnston has revised his proposed schedule. He has rejected the suggestion of a Canzoneri-Petrolle match for May 9, made by Canzoneri himself, and instead will bring Petrolle and Jackie Fields together for the welterweight title on May 20.

Win or lose in the fight with Fields, Petrolle will be given a shot at Canzoneri and the lightweight crown in July. The winner of the Petrolle-Fields bout also will be pledged to meet Jimmy McLarnin in an outdoor tilt. The proposed May 9 show has been abandoned, and instead Jack (Kid) Berg and Sammy Fuller will meet in a return match on May 13, this time for 12 or 15 rounds.

IF THEY GIVE Jack Gagnon time enough and a sufficient number of matches, he may one day startle the country by going the limit against somebody. It can't be denied that he is doing better each succeeding time out.

Jimmy Johnston

Gagnon has been knocked out in his last six so-called fights. Three of them ended in the first round, one in the fourth, one in the sixth, and the other night the Boston door mat smashed all of his endurance records by going into the seventh round before taking the count against Paulino Uzcudun.

IN GOLF THERE are no clubs like the old clubs. At least that has been the experience of Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston who won the United States amateur championship in 1929. In 1930 and 1931, Jimmy had the newest stuff in golfing equipment, but he failed to get as good results as previously, so now he is having his set of 1929 duplicated. "They were good enough to enable me to win the national amateur that year, and they ought to be good enough for me now," Johnson said. Jimmy was asked about the probable Walker Cup selections. "It's going to be a tough assignment to pick out the best 10 golfers in the United States to defend the cup late in September," he replied. "The committee is making a wise move in not announcing the choices until late in the season. This will give a good line on how the boys are playing this year. In my mind, the only one sure of a place right now is Francis Ouimet."

DISTRICT TRIAL TO BE HELD JUNE 6

Pittsburgh district golfers who aspire to compete in the thirty-sixth annual United States Open golf championship, to be staged at the Fresh Meadow Country Club, Flushing, N. AMATEUR PLANS CHANGED

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP)—The United States Golf Association plans to use fewer cities as sites for qualifying play for the National Amateur Championship this year, President H. H. Ramsay revealed today.

Regional qualifying trials for the amateur were held last year for the first time and in the same 20 cities used for the open qualifying trials. Experience showed several of the districts might well be consolidated and the committee is making its plans this year along those lines, he said.

Ramsay said it was tentatively planned to drop four cities, making a total of 16 qualifying locations, by having the Philadelphia and Richmond districts combined for trials at Washington, the Buffalo and Detroit areas merged with Cleveland.

HELEN TO MAKE FOREIGN TRIP

SAN FRANCISCO, April 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody announced here last night she would sail from New York April 27 for Europe to participate in three major tennis tournaments.

Mrs. Moody said she would enter the French hard court championships at Paris, May 22, after practicing in the French capital for two weeks. She then plans to go to London where it is expected she will play as a member of the United States Wightman cup team, May 13 and 14. She also will enter the Wimbledon tournament in June.

Mrs. Moody, American woman champion, did not participate in either the French or English championships last year, but in 1930 she won the women's singles title in each, and paired with Miss Elizabeth Ryan, won the women's doubles title.

ENGAGEMENT DENIED

Denial was made today of a report that Ade (Buck) Donnelli, Duquesne University freshman football and basketball star, and former star player, is engaged to Miss Dolores Puelliano, Ambridge High School graduate.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: TRUMPETING THROUGH THE NECK—The Nagas inhabit the hill country of Assam and wear aprons or petticoats for religious reasons. They are very skillful performers on the Indian flute or trumpet, which they play by pressing the instrument against their necks. The trumpets are so finely constructed that the small quantity of air propelled by the pressure of the neck on the opening of the tube will produce the sound. ROOSTER-SHAPED MONEY—Kedah, the country of the bizarre rooster-shaped money, is on the west coast of the Malay Peninsula, and covers an area of about 5,000 square miles. The shape of the coin is dictated by some sacred religious symbolism connected with the rooster. THE REPORTER WHO HAPPENED THERE BEFORE THE ACCIDENT—Somebody had telephoned the Washington Herald that an automobile had rolled down an embankment at First street and Michigan avenue, Northwest, Washington, D. C. As a reporter arrived on the scene of the alleged accident, he found that the mishap had not yet occurred. But, while the reporter was surveying the locality, muttering his disappointment, an automobile whizzed past him, plunged up the side of the embankment, back to the street again and then turned upside down. Out of the driver's seat climbed Charles Mahaney, unhurt, none the worst for his experience, to be greeted by the reporter who had arrived there before the accident.

OWNER TO SEND PHAR LAP HOME

MENLO PARK, Cal., April 7.—(AP)—Phar Lap, monarch of the Australian turf in his lifetime, is to be sent home to perpetuate the memory of one of the greatest thoroughbreds ever reared under the Southern Cross.

The great red gelding, whose untimely death here Tuesday stunned the racing world, is to be mounted in this country. A San Francisco taxidermist has started on the work.

Although colic has been generally accepted as the cause of Phar Lap's death, rumors flew thick and fast yesterday. In some quarters it was hinted the horse had died from poisoning placed in his feed bag.

Newspapermen were told by David J. Davis, the owner of the horse, valued at $500,000, that he definitely had accepted the first findings of veterinarians Dr. William Nielsen, who accompanied Phar Lap from Australia, attributed death to old-fashioned colic, probably induced by eating green feed or dampened barley in a field adjacent to the stable.

Two governments, New Zealand and Australia, were said to have requested that Phar Lap's remains be shipped there. The famed horse was foaled in New Zealand and ran most of his races in Australia. Davis has made no decision in the matter.

Phar Lap signalized his arrival on this continent with a smashing victory in the Agua Caliente Handicap, March 20. It added $50,050 to his winnings and brought his total earnings to $332,750, within striking distance of the world's record of $376,744 piled up by the American thoroughbred, Sun Beau.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

George Gibson's comments in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph relative to the Pirates and other clubs disclosed that Gibby has a wholesome respect for the Cubs. The Buccos were able to hold the classy Bruins to an even footing in six springtime battles, yet Gibby's trained eye realized that the Chicago boys have big possibilities.

Personally, I think that if the clever Redbirds are to be chased off the top this year it will be the Bears rather than the Giants who will do the "shooing." Apparently Stanley Heck and Bill Herman are coming through for Rogers Hornsby, and if these kids are able to hold up their end, the Rajah will show the patrons of the sport an appealing array.

Gibby notices that Hornsby has his club hustling all the time they are on the field. The Canuck almost won a pennant in 1921 with a hustling outfit which, on paper, assumed second division proportions.

In Root, Malone, Grimes, Smith and Bush, Hornsby sports five powerful righthanders whose collective winnings should go beyond the 75 mark. Malone often is good for as many as 20 victories and when Root is in his best stride he is one of the toughest of the righthanders.

Grimes, at the worst, should win a dozen games, and this figure will be surpassed unless the spitball veteran has dropped a lot of his stuff. It's a cinch he has lost none of his cunning; moreover, his presence on the club is a factor which calls for consideration. As any of the many players with whom Burleigh has been associated on his various teams will tell you, he exerts a winning influence.

Grimes will pitch out of turn and he will finish games for other pitchers. His advice during the progress of a contest is sought; in fact there are many reliable baseball men who feel that Burleigh would be an excellent manager if he were given the opportunity to run a team. Pitchers, as a rule, are not so hot as pilots, but Grimes might prove the exception to the rule.

The Cubs have one of the greatest of the great among the catchers in Leo Hartnett. Besides being a brilliant maskman, Gabby is a power on the offensive when he is himself at the plate. Zach Taylor and Rolly Hemsley are capable substitutes.

The wise saw regarding strength through the center of the field is in evidence on the Chicago club. An oracle of the diamond has said that a team having good strength behind the bat around second and in centerfield will go places and do things. Woodie English and Bill Herman may turn in the nifty job around second, and where will you find a better ball hawk for the center patrol than Hazen Cuyler?

HOCKEY SERIES RESUMED

The London Tecumsehs will be out to add to their lead in the International Hockey League's annual title playoffs when they meet the Windsor Bulldogs in the "semi-finals" of the series at London tonight.

Windsor, the defending champion, has been handed two defeats and does not figure to halt the championship march of the Tecumsehs.

While the Canadian rivals are battling it out, the Detroit Olympics and Buffalo Bisons, tied for second place, probably will knock one or the other out of the race in a joust at Fort Erie, Ontario, the Bisons' home ice. Buffalo should win this one, even as London should win over Windsor. It is likely that the pre-series favorites will go into the final games with the Tecumsehs leading by a single point.

Boston will get its first taste of 1931-32 world championship competition tonight when the New York Rangers and Toronto Leafs meet there in the second of their best-three-out-of-five-games final series for the Stanley Cup. Toronto won the first fray, in New York Tuesday. The series will be concluded on Toronto ice after tonight's engagement.

Hot Springs Gets College Golf Event

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—(AP)—The National Intercollegiate Golf Association will hold its thirty-sixth annual championship tournament at Hot Springs, Va., June 27 to July 2, Winston Fuller, secretary, announced here last night.

Fuller, who is captain of the University of Southern California golfers, said each college may enter six men in the tournament.

FORT WORTH, April 7.—The Pittsburgh Pirates and the local Panthers, of the Texas League, prepared today to clash in an exhibition tussle. The Pirates returned here from Dallas this morning, where yesterday they dropped the final game of their six-contest series with the Chicago Cubs. Yesterday's score favored the Bruins by 8 to 7, putting the Buccos in a far from happy frame of mind.

The mystery club of the 1932 pennant race in the National League will be the Pirates, if their actions displayed on the present exhibition tour can be taken seriously.

George Gibson, who has returned to baseball after an absence of 10 years to lead the Buccos this season, is not predicting great things for his aggregation, and there are few of the so-called smart men of baseball who are anticipating much from the Buccos.

The team has possibilities, all agree. Gibson, a member of the old baseball school, has injected some of that long forgotten pep and dash into the Corsair club and this, together with its admitted ability, may carry it a long ways.

TEAM GOING WELL

The club to date has been playing rather well, capturing 12 out of 24 exhibition games to have a .500 average for the tour. The Buccos hit a cold spell in San Francisco that for a time threatened to cause considerable damage, what with severe colds and sore arms, but it failed to dampen the spirit of the players.

Yesterday the Buccos dropped a game to the Cubs despite the fact that they pounded the ball to all corners of the field and outhit their rivals by four blows.

The loss of the game was overshadowed by the splendid work on the mound by Glenn Spencer. Spencer hurled the first five innings and turned back the Cubs with four hits. He was removed

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, April 7. — This is the sad time of year when big league managers tell lots of rookies to turn in their mess kits and be way-billed to the sticks. The preserving season is on and those that aren't canned outright are put up in glass jars and presented to minor league clubs.

Nick Altrock

Every spring the war correspondents spot youngsters that will give Babe Ruth, Pepper Martin and Lefty Grove a tough run, but by the time the regular season blooms they are cut off in bunches like bananas.

A lot of 'em will turn up again next spring, and if they'll pay as much attention to baseball form as to pork chops and mashed potatoes they have a better chance.

We pulled stakes for home last night, so I am dusting off my earlaps.

36 LAMBERT SHOW HORSES KILLED IN FIRE

$350,000 BLAZE IS LAID TO INCENDIARY

LUTHERVILLE, Md., April 7.—(AP.)—Cause of the fire here late last night that destroyed 36 thoroughbred horses and a stable on the estate of Lewis E. Lambert at a loss of $350,000, was sought today by Baltimore County officers.

W. P. Barnett, caretaker, who lives less than 200 yards from the burned stable, insists the blaze was of incendiary origin. He told officers that when he discovered the fire, flames were shooting up on the outside of the barn from two sides, but that there was no fire inside.

The horses were valued at $200,000, and the stable and its equipment at $150,000.

The owner, who has exhibited his animals at point-to-point and cross-country races in Maryland in recent years, was away at the time of the fire and did not arrive until after the stable had been destroyed.

The horses—hunters, jumpers and show animals—were mostly all the property of Lambert. A few were owned by his friends.

The blaze, shooting into the sky, brought Barnett to the porch of his home a little after 11 o'clock last night. He called out an alarm to the workmen and a group rushed to the stable.

As the doors of the barn were swung open the flames burst through from the sides and it was impossible to enter. The horses appeared to be stampeding as smoke obscured the view of the caretaker.

Fire apparatus from Towson, Lutherville, Cockesville and Rosedale responded to calls for assistance.

PIRATES MEET FORT WORTH

in the fifth in accordance with the schedule laid out by Manager Gibson, who is using two hurlers in the remaining exhibition games so that all will get a certain amount of work.

SWETONIC WILD

Steve Swetonic, who relieved Spencer, was wild and not the same pitcher who limited the Bruins to six hits over the nine-inning route last Saturday. Swetonic was nicked for five runs in the sixth and removed in favor of Swift in the seventh.

Swift, after getting away to a bad start, settled down and checked the batting rampage of the Cubs in the final two innings.

The Bucs failed to be easy prey for the Bruins, but proved to be rather hard foes, going down fighting. They bunched four hits in the seventh to score two runs and then in the eighth had runners on second and first when Comorosky, who had tripled in the previous inning, flied to Moore to end the game.

Ervin Brame will be on the mound for the Buccos this afternoon.

Boston Crowd Riots Over Wrestling Bout

BOSTON, April 7.—Jack Washburn, "bad by wrestler," was mobbed by the crowd after throwing his opponent, Kola Kwarini, and the referee, Bert Pots, out of the ring in one of the preliminaries of a charity wrestling show at Madison Square Garden here last night. He was arrested, along with two other men, as police quelled the disturbance amid a shower of flying missiles.

Washburn lost the match on a foul. He has been in two other flareups here and may not be permitted to wrestle in Boston again.

Jim Londos, the champion, defeated the Masked Marvel in the main bout, being awarded the first fall when the Marvel was disqualified for using the strangle hold after 29 minutes 28 seconds and pinning his man for the second fall in 5 minutes 38 seconds.

PANKA EVENS SCORE WITH ROCCO

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The episode of the Adam's Apple Punch is avenged. George Panka, Homestead heavyweight, is "hunk" with Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City veteran, for that knockout the latter slipped him via an alleged throat-blow, in the Motor Square Garden ring some 18 months ago.

The big fellows met again in the 10-round main bout in the Moose Temple last night, and Panka won from here to Ellwood City and back again in a drab affair, made so by the ineptitude of Rocco. Emmett was terrible from start to finish, dead on his feet and unable to lead or counter, and Panka simply danced around him in every round and stabbed and crossed, and, in short, did everything but knock him out. He cut Rocco's left eye in the third round and it was a highly decorated optic at the finish.

Panka showed to better advantage than for a long time in a local bout, and if he had pressed a little more he might have stopped his man. He scaled 194½ pounds against 188 for Rocco.

Lee Sala, of Donora, bested Jimmy Moore, Negro middleweight, of the Hill, in the six-round semi-final, a hard-fought affair; Johnny Cataline, of Oakland, won over Little Pal, of Chicago, subbing on short notice for Leon Jendrasiak, in the second bout, in which the bell saved Pal at the count of five following a body blow in the fifth round, and Ray Windbush, Hill Negro welterweight, won by a technical knockout over Bud Ciccerone, of Greensburg, in the third round of the opener, Referee Al Grayber calling a halt when Ciccerone got up from a knockdown and sagged down again without being hit.

Between Rounds

Marty Gornick, of Whitaker, and Matty Oldach, of Homestead, are set for their 10-round wuddin up in McKeesport tonight. Two other Erie boxers are on the card, Jimmy Dean, who meets Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, in the eight-round semi-final, and Joe Brown, who boxes Hal Finney, local Negro welterweight, in the second event. Andy Kosel, of Turtle Creek, and Petes Jahn, of the North Side, are in the opener.

Freddie Edwards, of Chester, W. Va., sparring mate of Ted Yarosz, is off the card at Motor Square Garden next Monday night because he refused to appear in the opening bout after having been promised a semi-final spot to Yarosz's windup with Vincent Hansbrigh. Edwards recently has been boxing windups in Cleveland and other Ohio cities and couldn't see appearing in the opening number here.

Jack Kilbourne, Australian middleweight who has been boxing successfully since coming to this country, meets Hank Hansen in a 10-round bout in Chicago next Monday night.

Three mixed bouts are on the card at the Kaufman Arena tomorrow night. Billy Hoskins, Negro meeting Billy Rose, of Cincinnati in the main event; Patsy Wallace, of New York, tangling with Carl Montesano, of Braddock, and Anson Green, of Homestead, meeting Russell Powers, of Youngstown. In the other bout, the semi-final, Dick Evans, Youngstown veteran, boxes Harry Harris, hard hitter from Bellaire, O.

John T. Taylor, secretary-treasurer of the Alleghany Mountain Association, of the A. A. U., who is receiving entries, reports a good list already on hand for the Golden Gloves amateur tournament to be held at the Moose Temple the last three nights of next week under the auspices of the Alleghany County American Legion. Meanwhile, the Legionaires are selling tickets rapidly for all three nights and the success of the venture seems assured.

An investigation is under way of the conduct of some amateur shows in the Western Pennsylvania sector, it being reported that boxers are receiving small cash sums for their services. One of the star performers has been openly boxing professionally in Ohio and as an amateur in Pennsylvania.

Jack Zivic, former local welterweight baker now residing in Pelham Manor, N. Y., is being considered for a position as assistant to Spike Webb, coach of the United States boxing team for the games at Los Angeles this summer. Zivic and Webb are old friends, dating back to Zivic's days as an amateur.

Tommy Loughran and Steve Hamas will meet in a return bout in Convention Hall, Philadelphia, May 11.

PANTHERS DINE SPORT TEAMS TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

Athletes galore — footballers, basketballers, boxers, golfers, trackmen, tennis players, swimmers, marksmen and hill-and-dale chasers — will be gathered together at Webster Hall tonight as the varsity squads of the University of Pittsburgh assemble for their annual sports dinner. It will be the second time that all sport teams have been entertained at one time. Previous to last year the various varsities had their own blowouts. Then the one-banquet idea was tried out and found to work splendidly.

Don Smith

Captains will be chosen for basketball, boxing and swimming. Letters will be awarded in all sports. Don Smith, star of Doc Carlson's 1931-32 court varsity, is the outstanding choice for the captaincy for next year.

Chancellor John Bowman, Dean Seig and coaches of the various teams will handle the speechmaking, and it is a 10-to-1 shot that Capt. Paul Reider, of the football squad, will get a word or two in, edgewise at least.

GOLF PRO TO WED

The Tipoff

Two local boxing referees, Red Robinson and Al Graeber, have been selected to assist in handling the bouts at the Intercollegiate Olympic tryouts at Penn State tomorrow and Saturday. The local boys will work with Frank McCracken and Dr. Bryan Hayes, of Philadelphia. The quartet will handle some 12 scraps during the two days of belting.

Two former Carnegie Tech football stars waved bye-bye to coaching positions yesterday. Johnny Urzetar, who served as line coach at Western Reserve last fall, resigned his job and will enter business here in the city. Cy Melon, former end star, left Case where he was assistant coach, to take the head-man position at Ursan College in Ohio.

Pitt, Tech and Duquesne boxing stars, entered in the Olympic tryouts at Penn State, are scheduled to bar themselves out of form today. They will be joined at State by West Virginia and Wash.-Jeff punchers and will give this district strong representation in the meet.

Taking advantage of the regulation which permits college freshmen to compete in the National Intercollegiate Olympic battles no fewer than 10 star yearlings will swing gloves at the Penn State affair. Among the outstanding frosh will be Abe Gomick, Ernie Sesto's pride and joy at Carnegie Tech and big Tony DeMarco, of Duquesne.

GOLF PRO TO WED

PAT O'SHOCKER FIERY MATMAN

One of the most fiery matmen in the business will appear in one of the supporting bouts on the Jim Londos-Frank Speers card at Motor Square Garden next Tuesday night in the person of Pat O'Shocker, red-haired Irishman. Possessing a quick-flaring temper, Pat has been known to go berserk with madness in the ring, and this trait has lost as well as won many bouts for him. He meets Abe Coleman, Jewish star, in a match limited to 30 minutes.

There will be three other 30-minute time limit matches, with the Londos bout scheduled for one fall to a finish.

OFFICIALS DINE TONIGHT

The annual banquet of the Officials' Club of Pittsburgh will be held tonight at

THE NEWEST

Motor Car Style — Slip-Stream Design

X-Dual Frame, Super-Rigid
Strongest, most rigid type of frame. The massive inside girders extend practically entire length of chassis, giving car, virtually, a double frame. (All models.)

Dash Full Range Ride Control
A lever conveniently located on new Nash instrument panel enables you to regulate your travel-comfort, regardless of road, load, speed or temperature (All models.)

Driving Seat Adjustment
New roller, sliding type front seat adjustment. Finger-tip operation. Easy to regulate. Provides positive control. (All Coupes and regular Sedans.)

Come to our showroom and see a really different motor car style — the Slip-Stream body. It's new. It's modern. It's unusually beautiful.

Along with its new distinction in appearance it has the great value of actually making Nash performance even finer because of its aerodynamic design.

Frontal air resistance is reduced by the V-radiator and sloping windshield for their aerodynamic contours go "with" the wind instead of "against" it as do the old-style snub-nose radiator and upright windshield.

At the same time the body taper and Beavertail back minimize rear end vacuum "hold-back," because Nash slip-streams the rear as well as the front.

All new Nash models are longer in wheelbase, with greater power and greater speed, and so low even with no decrease in head room and road clearance that the width is considerably greater than its height—a contribution to greater safety.

New Beavertail Back
Unusually beautiful. Aerodynamically designed to free car from "hold-back" of rear-end vacuum and thereby to save power-waste at high speed. (All models.)

Two Glove Compartments
A feature of the new instrument panel is the conveniently located, chromium-trimmed glove and parcel compartments on both sides of panel. (All models.)

Underslung Worm Drive Axle

FLACCO DIVE CHAMP

PENN ACE COPS IN NATIONAL MEET HERE

Pittsburgh was extremely swim conscious last night as the Keystone A. C. pool staged the men's junior national A. A. U. low-board diving championship and district diving and 300-yard medley swim championships and district Y. M. C. A. squads battled in the Downtown Y pool for the senior and intermediate metropolitan titles.

A Philadelphian, Ruggero Flacco, Penn A. C. entry, captured the national diving championship after a close battle all the way with a pair of Pittsburghers, Frank Fehsenfeld of the Indianapolis A. C. and Johnny Casey of Pitt. The Hoosier finished one second place a fraction of a point behind Flacco, while Casey trailed Fehsenfeld by a trifle more than a point.

Need for Centralized Economic Study Seen By Dr. R. J. Watkins

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

BUSINESS NEEDS a new type of leadership—centralized leadership which can consider industrial problems from the standpoint of all industry, not just from that of a single organization. This is the essence of an article by Ralph J. Watkins, entitled "This Depression and the Next," in the Pittsburgh Record, a publication operated by the faculty of the University of Pittsburgh.

Centralized Effort Seen As Essential

INDIVIDUAL BANKING and industrial organizations have economists, but the studies made are in reference to only the interests of single companies. In commenting on the strange condition of a nation with the finest industrial plants, the greatest natural resources and millions of unemployed, Dr. Watkins says:

"The colossal failure of the twentieth century lies in the field of economic organization. Today our scientists and engineers can build plants and produce goods beyond imagination; they can provide the physical basis for a standard of living immeasurably superior to our present one; but they are effectively prevented from doing so by the inadequacy of economic organization. It may be observed that this inadequacy is the inevitable result of two inherent weaknesses:

"1. Under our present form of economic organization it is not the business of any one to think and plan in terms of the function and place of a given industry (the iron and steel industry, for example) in our economic structure.

"2. It is not the business of any one to think and plan in terms of the function and operation of the economic structure as a whole."

Declares Independent Study Necessary

DR. WATKINS declares that the country is in a quandary over its anti-trust laws. It is not certain to what extent regulations against restraint of trade should be relaxed to stop destructive and ruinous competition.

This is only one of the problems which must be solved. Dr. Watkins does not favor general government control of industry, but he does see a need for a centralized economic body to shape the general policies of business. He says:

"Industry must be stimulated from the outside to tackle the problem of control. An impartial research agency, free from political influences, representing industry generally but owing allegiance to no group, completely free in its researches, and bending all its energies in the direction of finding practical means of achieving economic stability for the common good, is the appropriate body for outside stimulation and guidance. We cannot afford to rely on sporadic efforts at control; our thinking and our energies must be directed in an organized way at the broad objective of conscious planning for more efficient economic organization."

STOCK MARKET LOSES EARLY ADVANCES

Much of List Sent Into New Low Ground - Steel Makes Fresh Minimum

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP.)—While selling pressure in today's stock market was less severe than yesterday's, important signs of conclusion of this latest phase of the decline were still lacking.

There was a little flurry of short covering in the first hour, which sent some leaders up 1 to 2 points momentarily, but the list quickly slipped back again and by early afternoon there were numerous losses of fractions to 2 points, seldom much of the list further from new low ground.

Utilities continued to bear the brunt of selling. Losses of 1 to 2 points appeared in such issues as Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Detroit Edison, Columbia Gas, Stone and Webster, Commonwealth and Southern preferred and Southern California Edison. Among the specialties, Kresge was a weak feature, dropping 4 points. The decline was attributed largely to dividend uncertainties. American Can also encountered considerable pressure, sagging more than 2 to a 5-year bottom. Bethlehem Steel, Corn Products, Procter and Gamble and Union Pacific also sagged a point or more. United States Steel dipped fractionally to a new minimum. Rails held up relatively better than recently.

This latest phase of the two and one-half-year decline has now been in progress for five weeks. During that period the price average has shown a decline for every trading session save six. The fundamental factor in the slump has undoubtedly been the failure of business activity to show the expected spring quickening.

Conservative quarters in Wall street have had little hope of anything impressive in the way of a spring upturn in central trade, pointing to next autumn as a more logical time to expect real improvement. Among things which might bring a halt to the slump in the security markets, however, are mentioned a fair public response to the April sales campaigns of the automobile manufacturers; final passage of a federal tax measure balancing the budget, which is not now expected for several weeks, and a satisfactory conclusion to the June conference on reparations at Lausanne.

In the meantime, the most gratifying aspect of the stock market remains the relatively light volume of selling.

Some quarters are hopeful that continuance of the Federal Reserve Bank's policy of expanding credit through open market operations may begin to have a beneficial effect. Strength of United States government securities, and an easy undertone in the money market, have brought some expectations of a further reduction in the New York rediscount rate.

NEWS ON CROPS LIFTS WHEAT

CHICAGO, April 7.—Spreading of adverse crop conditions in domestic winter wheat territory southwest and west led to fresh upturns in grain values early today. Kansas advices told of gangs working to keep highways clear and one dust drift three feet deep and a half a mile long. Opening ⅛ to ¾ higher, wheat continued to mount. Corn started unchanged to a shade up and subsequently rose further.

With no important rains reported in drought territory and with chances of moisture relief apparently remote, some trade authorities were predicting that by midsummer wheat prices would be in the seventies owing to crop impairment and to enlarged foreign demand. Adding to purchase incentives were reports of temperatures around freezing in the Texas Panhandle, accompanied by extremely high north winds.

Forbes

Each Idle Man a Reason For Modifying Law

By B. C. FORBES

IF OUR politicians would only sensibly amend the outworn anti-trust laws better conditions for us all could be brought about.

The statute books still decree that cut-throat competition not cooperation, makes for prosperity. Every practical businessman knows better.

LIGHT THOUGH it is were the present volume of business all done at a reasonable profit, this country would be very much better off. More wages would be paid out, more dividends and interest would be distributed, better prices would rule for securities there would be fewer failures, everybody would feel encouraged.

Mr. Forbes

But our anachronistic laws dangle jail doors before any men in any industry or business who, anxious to bring about economic betterment, dare to talk things over among themselves with a view to checking demoralization and ruin. Certain trade associations have been striving heroically to develop saner policies, principles and practices. Even in face of the menacing statutes, some progress has been made.

BUT ISN'T it true that high finance and big business by selfish conduct moved the public in the past to demand legal restraints upon their activities, including regulation?

NEVERTHELESS the time assuredly has come when laws governing industry and business should be modernized.

Surely it is possible to devise statutes which would permit greater freedom of constructive, beneficial, stabilizing action and at the same time punish severely anti-social tactics. Our present laws are one full generation behind.

EACH ONE of our six or seven million unemployed citizens is a potent, urgent, clamorous reason for removing antiquated legal handicaps on business and industry.

P. S.—I met many long faces in Wall street yesterday. It was refreshing in the late afternoon, however, to run into Sidney Z. Mitchell, utility leader, full of his characteristic vigor, forcefulness and irrepressible faith in America's future.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

to hurry here for the death of one year and the birth of another. The broad room was overcrowded with table parties, except for a center oval of waxed oak, cleared for dancers. On a low platform at the rear wall, a troupe of boys with pale, elderly faces blew and scraped the mumbo-jumbo of jazz upon their strings and brass. In the warm air drifted the smells of women—powder and perfume and perspiration blending with tobacco smoke.

SURPRISES ATTORNEY

As we hesitated, the lumpy figure of Merle K. Dougherty appeared lumbering rapidly toward us. The District Attorney was one of Colt's oldest and most unreasonable friends—a stout and noisy but competent man, with dangling jowls, a mop of red curls and protruding blue eyes that always seemed indignant and alarmed.

"Thatcher, I know how you dislike all this," apologized Dougherty, panting as he shook hands, "but tonight old man you've got to trust me. This way!"

Through narrow twisting lanes of skylarking show-folk the District Attorney led us with confident tread. As he had boasted, his table was on the edge of the dance floor. We sat down. Colt's grave eyes taking in the scene in one swift and lustrous glance. It was a social assemblage and the excitement was palpably rising with the approach of the midnight hour.

"Well, Dougherty?"

Dougherty's eyes suddenly rolled upward.

"Who told you anything about that?" he demanded.

"Not the District Attorney," replied Thatcher Colt, mild reproof in his voice. The Commissioner had long felt that the functions of the police were too often usurped by the District Attorneys, not only in New York but in many other American cities. Recently Colt's objection was given eminent support by the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission which condemned such interference.

SEEK GEM THIEVES

"We'll compare notes later. Go ahead!"

"Anyway, I don't have to tell you how many big jewel robberies have been pulled off in the last few months. The total runs into staggering figures. The insurance companies are on my neck—and yours. The thieves force their way into houses and apartments disguised as delivery men, mechanics—all sorts of ruses. Now, Thatcher, those jewel thieves are certainly in cahoots with somebody higher up—somebody who hob-nobs with the swells and plans the jobs!"

"Have you found a clue to this mysterious personality?"

Thatcher Colt's expression was amiable and interested, not by a flicker of an eyelid did he betray that the Headquarters jewel squad had been searching for the brains of the gem thieves for many exciting weeks, and were now ready to ask for the indictment of a downtown insurance broker and seven fellow-conspirators.

"Well, Thatcher," grinned Dougherty, "I think I have found the higher-up."

"It's a she!"

"A woman!"

Thatcher Colt's face lightened with a hunter's startled interest. Had Dougherty really turned up something? The District Attorney now pointed discreetly with his thumb across the empty dance floor.

We saw a party of men and women clustered in front of the only vacant table visible in that part of the Crystal Room. Barring the newcomers' way stood a waiter, his hands star-fished in apology. Through all the talk and laughter one could hear him repeating, "I am very sorry, Senator, this table is positively reserved. You will have to sit farther back."

A MYSTERIOUS WOMAN

As he leaned toward Thatcher Colt the District Attorney added impressively:

"That reservation is being held for the woman I'm telling you about. What's more, there are tables for her in half a dozen other night clubs as well. She pays for all those reservations, whether she uses them or not—always sure of a ring-side seat, wherever her fancy takes her. Money seems to mean nothing to her. The Night Club Lady, she is called by the Broadway columnists—and sometimes 'The Mystery of Mayfair.'"

Colt's expression remained stolid.

"The Night Club Lady," he repeated. "Do you mean Lola Carewe?"

"So you know of her, too?"

"Who doesn't. Dougherty? The widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire."

"But nowadays she calls herself again by her maiden name, Lola Carewe. Mystery why she does that, too. In fact, my dear Thatcher, she is the most mysterious woman in New York today."

FORMER SCREEN STAR

Colt seemed suddenly reminded of something.

"Old Gifford died a year after that sensational marriage didn't he? And when his will was read, there was hardly enough money left to pay the undertaker. Did you want to talk with me about Lola Carewe?"

Dougherty turned his head on one side with a triumphant smile.

"Have you ever seen her?" he countered.

"I think not," replied Colt thoughtfully. "But in a general way I am familiar with her career. She was a cinema performer—was she not?"

"Ten years ago. She first made a hit in a French motion picture about Pompadour—"

"And then went to Hollywood?"

"Where she was a success. The public idolized her. Along came old Gifford and married her. The story now is that she is thinking of going back into pictures."

Here the District Attorney extended one red and hairy forefinger and tapped on the back of Thatcher Colt's hand as if he were telegraphing, as he added in a low and accusing tone:

"Gifford died a pauper. Yet Lola Carewe continues to live in luxury. The manager told me she will be here any minute now. I just want you to take a good look at her. Then I'll tell you something—"

ARE INTERRUPTED

At this moment a group from a neighboring table descended on us in a gust of salutations. They were acquaintances of Dougherty who wanted to be presented to the Police Commissioner. Politely Colt surrendered to a barrage of questions. Two slender fire-haired Hollywood sisters in blue gowns at once demanded to know the inside facts about the latest gang war. Colt had to assure them there was no honor among thieves; he was always being asked about that by romantic girls.

With shrill partings our uninvited visitors hurried off, as the music resumed, and Colt, Dougherty and I faced each other again.

A DANGEROUS BEAUTY

"And so," resumed my chief, as if there had been no interruption, "the mystery about the former Mrs. Gaylord Gifford is the source of her income. I seem to remember that Gifford did leave her about half a million in life insurance."

"But look what the creature spends!" cried Dougherty, his gaze almost apoplectic.

"Do you mean to say," demanded Colt in a low tone, "that you have a real reason to believe the widow of Gaylord Gifford is mixed up in a jewel ring?"

"The facts?"

"We have not investigated in vain," returned Dougherty oracularly. "To establish a definite relation between such a woman and the underworld is not easy, and yet—"

To the table that had been so valorously reserved, two prancing waiters now led the night club lady and an elderly escort. In my first glimpse of Lola Carewe I thought she was the most dangerous beauty I had ever seen. I still think so.

WITH OLD MAN

Nevertheless, the dark Lola's appearance in Mayfair that stormy New Year's Eve was startling and brilliant. She was wearing an ermine cloak, the four hundredth that night in Mayfair where ermine is an evening uniform, but Lola's was an exceptionally handsome one—and under that a gown of white satin. Colt said she carried her head like a peacock.

Behind the night club lady ambled a little old man with dainty ears and a white goatee. He was Vincent Rowland, the sharp-eyed railroad attorney who loved to play Croesus to modern young painters.

"Isn't she beautiful!" exulted Dougherty.

"She looks like a woman who has had bad news," murmured Thatcher Colt.

The waiters were serving us food. I found it hard to keep my eyes from Lola Carewe. What were the dark secrets in that queenly head?

"Her own collection of jewels is fabulous," Dougherty confided. "East Idian things—like the emeralds stolen from the eyes of idols in Lord Dunsany's plays."

COLT GETS MESSAGE

I was listening with only one ear. My attention was drawn back irresistably to that other table. Now I surprised a curious little drama. I saw their waiter bow low and walk off with a supper order pressed against his shirt-front. At once Vincent Rowland and Lola Carewe began—or perhaps resumed a spirited discussion. Their heads were close together, and both kept glancing in our direction.

Suddenly Lola Carewe drew from her evening purse a golden pencil and wrote something on the back of a menu card. As she folded the paper, Vincent Rowland spoke to her earnestly, but she shook her head, her eyes summoned a waiter, and with a whispered direction she gave him the note.

Colt, too, had observed what was passing. While Dougherty continued to orate on jewel thieves, the chief and I watched to see where the messenger carried that note.

He hurried directly to our table!

In front of the Police Commissioner was laid a silver salver on which reposed the folded menu card.

"Pardon me," muttered Thatcher Colt, and picked up the note. Dougherty calmly attacked his soup. He did not realize from whom that billet came.

Colt's strong, tanned face was expressionless as he read the message through. But as he put the paper down he momentarily closed his eloquent eyes, his only visible sign when deeply aroused.

A LIFE IN DANGER

Across the table he shoved the note.

"Will you read that and take charge of it, Tony?"

Hastily I scanned the lines, scrawled in a large bold hand:

"Dear Mr. Thatcher Colt:

"I must talk with you at once. You can save a human life. Will you do it? I am in my right senses. I never drink and am not neurotic. I want to talk with you on police business. Will you join Mr. Rowland and myself at our table? Or will meet you outside if you prefer. Mr. Colt, please!

"Lola Carewe."

"What's all that?" he queried, fumbling for a mislaid napkin.

Colt did not smile as he explained:

"Miss Lola Carewe is desperately anxious to give the police some information. Join us, Dougherty!"

For once the District Attorney was jolted into utter silence. Blank-faced, he followed through the throng. The dance floor was still a swaying mass of jewels, perfume, and joy as we three made our way around the oval to the table of the night club lady.

Katherine Interrupts the Conference

Neither Lillian's husband nor mine obeyed Lillian's injunction to "sit ye down" when in response to her summons they rushed over to the studio bungalow. Instead they fired questions and expostulations at us.

But Lillian was imperturbable, as always.

"Sit down, and keep quiet," she said, "and we'll answer all your questions before we start asking a few of our own."

They had both seated themselves while Lillian was talking and Harry Underwood repeated the question which we had not yet answered because of Dicky's objection to spending much time away from the farmhouse.

"How about the stenographic-memory stunt?" he said insistently.

"One hundred per cent perfect, we modestly admit," Lillian said with a grin. "My shorthand notes and the sounds Madge has recorded upon that wonderful memory of hers are exactly alike. We've been drilling on them."

"Will you both be able to say them over clearly and distinctly?" Mr. Underwood asked eagerly.

"I could spiel 'Curfew shall not ring tonight' better than any other girl in our school," Lillian replied with a grin, "and Madge is no slouch on this here modern expression stuff. Oh! we can reel it off, all right, any time you're ready for us, but that's just the reason you're over here. We'll speak our little pieces here at the farmhouse, but nowhere else, while the present excitement lasts. It's up to you to bring your mandarin down to the farmhouse if you want us to hold any seance for him."

ADVICE NEEDED

"But" Harry Underwood began, patently dismayed.

"'But me no buts,' quoted Lillian determinedly, "I loathe the word. You ought to be able to see all by your little self that the present is no time for either of us to go sacheting away from the farmhouse upon any errand."

"That's true," Mr. Underwood assented, "and I'll do my level best to get the old bird out here."

"Will you have to go in yourself?" Lillian asked, anxiously, and her husband threw an encouraging smile at her.

"No, I won't leave here," he said. "I'll send a special delivery tonight to a guy I know who's close to him and if he can't start the old lad out in this direction, nobody can."

"So far, so good," Lillian said wrinkling her nose at the banality. "And now, Madge and I would like the benefit of some sage advice as to how we're going to carry on with the present situation. Regardez!" she held up her left hand, checking off the thumb and fingers with the forefinger of the other. "Item, one baby needing constant attention; item, one mother with a play to finish for the greatest producer of his time, within the next three days; item, one man wounded to death demanding constant professional care; item, the best nurse in the country; item, two professional men and one professional woman all with work hanging over their heads; item, one feeble old grandmother; item, one grandfather not particularly feeble, but not robust either; item, two small boys needing supervision, what's the answer?"

THREE PEOPLE READY

Her husband had been watching her intently as she checked off the inventory and as she finished his answer was prompt.

"You can eliminate the crushing burden of work on one professional man's shoulders," he said with a grin, "there isn't a thing I've got on hand that I can't flag for a week or two."

"Here too," Dickey assented. "You know, Madge—" he turned to me, I always manage my work so that I'll have the absolute minimum of it in July and August, and Ede can run the magazine if she wants to with one hand tied behind her."

"I'm already out of it as far as work is concerned," Lillian said. "I finished the only rush order I had four days ago and I haven't a thing on hand that can't be parked in the corner until I get around to it."

"That makes three people eligible for general duty," Harry Underwood commented; "but, of course, the whole case revolves around Katrina."

Our eyes went to the door as Katherine evidently in a tearing hurry appeared before it.

This Week's Tear-Jerker

Note—While we would thoroughly enjoy paying $100 for the best short short, short, short story printed each week, we realize as well as anybody that no lady would accept money from a stranger, so we are printing the prize story from Mrs. Gildercrants, of Peoria, who will always find us pleasant to deal with and not disposed to violate the social code—eh, Mrs. Gildercrants.

By Cassie Gildercrantz.

THIS is a story a house detective told me—otherwise I would not vouch for its verasity.

It seems that there was a woman with beautiful, long hair. Her name was Mrs. Sutherland and she was acquainted with the house detective, who wanted, more than anything else, a watch so he could tell the time of day. The more the detective hinted for a watch, the more it annoyed Mrs. Sutherland, who was in no position to ignore his wishes. So what did she do but go get her hair cut off and with the money she got from the mattress company for her hair she bought a wrist watch and chain, which she slipped into the detective's stocking, which he had removed in the hall to do some tip-toeing. Finding the watch, the detective's better self got the best of him. What did he do? He hocks the watch and chain and with the money he buys a beautiful combination hairbrush and hand mirror for Mrs. Sutherland. Mrs. Sutherland is naturally upset about the whole affair, but has only herself to blame for spending time reading O. Henry stories which she might have better spent in a drug store window.

Pinchot Disappoints

Appointment of McGovern's Nephew to Dr. Conover's Place a Shocking Performance.

The Sun-Telegraph was shocked by the wanton dismissal of Dr. John R. Conover as health director of Allegheny County last week, and the appointment of Dr. E. A. Conti, nephew of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, to the place. On the face of it it looked very much as if Gov. Pinchot, in making the change, was engaging in dirty politics.

But while sympathizing with the indignation of the physicians, social workers and others who protested against the arbitrary discharge, without adequate cause, of an efficient public servant who had served the county faithfully for many years, we refrained from comment until an opportunity had been afforded Gov. Pinchot to offer whatever justification he could for his action.

He has had his opportunity and chooses to say nothing. No other construction, accordingly, can be placed on his conduct than that he has brazenly embraced the spoils system of politics.

Real Estate Values

There Is Wide Disparity in Many Cases Between Assessment Figures and Market Prices.

Complaint has been filed in Common Pleas Court by the owners of a number of office buildings, hotels and apartment houses that the assessed valuations placed on their property for city tax purposes are in excess of the actual value. In some cases it is charged the assessment figures are double the market value.

This is quite possible, as a transaction that occurred a few days ago bears witness. The owner of a hillside lot in the East End, assessed at $600, sought in vain for a dozen years to sell it for anything approximating that sum. Real estate dealers were unable to help him. Finally he obtained a buyer through a Sun-Telegraph classified advertisement, but the price at which the deal was closed was $150, which the seller was glad to get.

There must be many pieces of property in Pittsburgh which are ridiculously over-assessed. No doubt there are others which are under-assessed.

A Question of Fitness

It Is Doubtful If Judge Parker Possesses the Judicial Poise Desirable in the Superior Court.

The fitness of Judge William Parker to serve in the Superior Court, to which he was recently appointed by Gov. Pinchot, and to which he seeks, with the support of Boss Vare, of Philadelphia, to be elected for a full term, has been brought into question.

Doubt has been cast on his possession of the judicial poise, the freedom from passion and prejudice, the ability to view things impartially, which are so desirable on the bench.

An incident which occurred in Judge Parker's court in Venango County two years ago is of interest in this connection. An attorney for an estate asked the Superior Court to assign another judge to the case, saying Parker was prejudiced. The Superior Court decided Parker was qualified, whereupon he declared the attorney and the executor whom he represented in contempt of court for questioning his impartiality. In this the Superior Court reversed him.

A 'Police College'

There Are Many Things the Officers Could Be Taught With Benefit to Themselves and the Public.

Under the auspices of the Civic Club of Allegheny County courses of instruction in elementary criminology are to be offered policemen and detectives at the University of Pittsburgh.

Council has asked Director Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, for a report on the "police college" and an opinion as to its possible benefits to the public.

Just what Pitt proposes to teach the officers has not been made clear, but a number of things come to mind that might be taught with advantage to the police and the public.

The police should be taught for one thing to make definite charges when definite offenses have been committed and not merely accuse wrongdoers of being "suspicious persons."

They should be taught they have no right to hold prisoners incommunicado or, except in the case of the gravest felonies, without the privilege of bail.

They should be taught that the "third degree" is unlawful, that they are committing crime themselves when they torture a prisoner to make him confess.

An Improvement

The County Is Fortunate in Being Freer Than Usual From Political Posters.

The primary election is less than three weeks distant, and there are hundreds of candidates; yet political signs and posters are not much in evidence.

Two boys were fined $10 each in Morals Court yesterday for posting political signs in the Herron Hill district. The police are to be congratulated on enforcement of the ordinance.

The situation is an improvement on that which prevailed before the election of last autumn. In some sections of the county, during that campaign, there was scarcely a wall, a tree or a telephone pole that was not plastered with the candidates' advertisements, and even the boulevards and sidewalks were not immune from defacement.

It is to be hoped the abandonment of these methods is permanent.

A Mood

The white rose only do I desire,
No pink rose promise, no red rose fire,
No rare enchantment of yellow bloom,
But pallid petals and faint perfume.
The white rose only would my hands clasp;
No flaunting colors for their frail grasp;
The white rose only for my still ways.
The white rose only can satisfy
This hour's longing, this dusk-dimmed sky;
While day is fading and bird-songs cease,
The white rose only can give me peace.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 7.—A satisfying symbol of the drift back to simplicity is the Forty-fourth Street Chowder and Marching Club at the historic Algonquin. Its members observe but two rules: No marching—no chowder. They are sophisticates in retreat from jazz and gay by-products.

Sponsors for the utopian gesture include Dorothy Parker, Lynn Fontanne, Alfred Lunt, Frank Crowninshield, Elizabeth Cobb Brody, Margaret Case Morgan, John Harriman, William Tilden, H. Harold Ross, Florence Rice, Donald Freeman and other of the town's glossarists.

The meetings are on Sunday evenings. From 6:30 to 8:30 a buffet dinner is served. Then to midnight and after, members turn to the simplicities of life as lived in the days of horse-hair furniture and waxed what-nots under glass. Merriment in its serenest innocence!

There are ping-pong games. Also backgammon, contract, anagrams, camelot, chess, checkers, bagatelle, dominoes and piquet. As a change of pace charades are introduced sometimes during the evening. The first session brought out one of the most distinguished gatherings of the season.

The quaint title for the club resulted from a sudden huddle by Dorothy Parker and Elizabeth Cobb Brody. There is about it all the charm of taffy pulls or popcorn parties held in those unpretentious suburban cottages scattered along the meads of Jersey.

Wise cracks are barred. Also the whine of the saxophone or lament of the crooner. So in this vastly publicized citadel of the intelligentsia in the very heart of the Roaring Forties, the spirit of the ice cream social in Broken Cloud is expressed.

This is only one of many desertions from night clubs and gilded speaks to lemonade and ginger snaps. Innumerable tea rooms offer patrons chess and checker boards after the meal. And the bright bourgeois gusto of the response indicates jazz is on its way out.

Robert Ripley was entranced with the South Sea Islands. The object of his junket was to interview Queen Vaekaha about her 500 husbands, but he found so many other exciting things among the sunny Savannas he post-carded friends he hoped to spend his declining days on these outer fringes of the world. As though Rip would ever decline.

Two of the most distinguished, handsomest and best dressed artists in New York are James Montgomery Flagg and Howard Chandler Christy. Each, past 50, is a Brummel. Of the younger generation of artists, Russell Patterson leads the pack sartorially. He has the profile of a collar ad. lad and the tufts o' premature gray at his temples accentuate a worldly bravado. Patterson clings tenuously to modest fabrics in clothes, but lets himself go in incarnadine ties—shaming those brilliances achieved by Johnny Morgan, the mid-west fashion plate.

There are other striking examples the modern artist does not fit the fictionized picture—seedy clothes, run-over shoes, spotty shirt and flowing tie. Par example—Harrison Fisher, master of the magazine cover! Tall, straight as an arrow, he is a monochrome from the gray of his spats to the gray of his hair. Even the crook of his cane is tipped in lizard skin gray. Broadway's sartorial tradition is upheld by Ham Fisher, of the comic strips. Each spring he anticipates the riotous coloring of the derby winner's giddy blanket.

George M. Cohan and Sam H. Harris came up in the world of the theater, fast friends, business partners and married sisters. Then came one of those unexplainable squalls so often wrecking such devotions. For 10 years they did not speak. A well known restaurateur worried over the schism. One day he intimated to Cohan that all was not well with his erstwhile partner, hinting financial reverses. It was an inexcusable white lie, but caused Cohan to send for Harris. He came. They shook hands, indulged the light banter of mutual embarrassment and the breach was healed. To this day they cannot explain the harsh interlude in their camaraderie.

LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

When that great man took his life the other day did you wonder if he had the right.

Did you and your friends argue about it, all shocked and distressed—feeling, somehow, that the thing was wrong, and that no man should waste the precious gift of life.

Probably. Most of us said just that, condemning suicide.

YET EVEN AS WE DID SO, NINE TENTHS OF US WERE COMMITTING SUICIDE—THROWING AWAY OUR OWN LIVES!

What queer, inconsistent things we humans are.

We grow cold with horror if we see a man lying dead, his life ended by his own hand; but we never turn a hair if we see a man LIVING DEAD, his life wasted by his own will.

All of us some of the time, and some of us all the time, do LIVE DEAD. Our lives are as truly thrown away as though we had put a bullet through our brain.

Moments, hours, days pass by, filled with possible adventure, filled with opportunity—and we let them pass. We do not embark on those adventures. We do not use those opportunities. Instead, we exist as aimlessly as a toad in a puddle.

We eat.
We sleep.
We play.
We make love.
We work a little—as little as possible.
We make sounds with our mouths and motions with our limbs.
We have a few dreams, a few emotions—
Then, presently, we die.

But actually, we've been dead all the time!

We have known a little purposeless animal life, but we have thrown away our chance to live a HUMAN LIFE.

This, of course, most of us would indignantly deny. But it's true. Most of us spend 50 or 60 or 70 years on earth carefully avoiding human life. For human life is an uncomfortable, lonely, often dangerous affair. It does not consist of eating, sleeping, working, playing, making love. The lowest brutes can do and do all these things. But a man, to be worthy of the name, must do more.

He must think. He must make sacrifices; take chances, force his body and mind into new territories; run the risk of loss, and pain, and betrayal, and humiliation.

He must dare to face the truth, which is nearly always a highly unpleasant experience, and apt to make you look and feel like 30 cents.

Yet all these things the human animal must do if he is to live the life of a man; and if he doesn't do them, he has truly "TAKEN HIS OWN LIFE."

You condemn suicides—BUT ARE YOU ONE?

You do not believe a man should throw his life away—BUT HOW MUCH OF YOUR OWN LIFE ARE YOU USING?

Sit down. Audit the last 24 hours. Write down what you really did, really thought. How much of that day was really used; how much wasted? Add it up. Maybe you'll be surprised!

Isn't It So?

Text for Today

Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.—I Corinthians, xiii:1.

All of Which Means Something to You

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The tax bill has now reached the Senate, where it will be carefully considered and, no doubt, changed in spots; and Secretary Ogden Mills, who has not been notably helpful in solving the problem of how to meet the Hoover deficit, announces that the House bill falls short of the promise to balance the budget. He bases this conclusion on the fact that the House assumes that the Hoover administration will do something to reduce the extravagant expenditures in the executive departments, which, he says, cannot be done. Since we have heard so much from the President about economy and reductions in the cost of government, business men will expect Mr. Mills and his colleagues to do something. That politics enters into Mr. Mills' statement we have no doubt—for we all know Mr. Mills; and also know that the administration is sadly in need of some political advantage. And then, too, Mr. Mills is just as likely to be a few hundred million off in his estimate of revenue and costs as he and Mr. Mellon have traditionally been. Mr. Garner recalls that he has "guessed" right more frequently than the two heads of the Treasury; everyone else knows it, too.

The tax bill, such as it is, is a bi-partisan measure, hammered into shape by a coalition of the two parties. But the deficit requiring the enormous increase in the taxes is the deficit of the regime under which it was made.

Suspect Deception In Stimson Voyage

Secretary Stimson is going to Europe, unexpectedly, and, according to the official statement, for no purpose other than a desire to assist in the arms conference. Even the most robust administration organs are inclined to suspect that there is some deception here. They remember that the moratorium expires in June; and also that once before when Mr. Mellon and Mr. Stimson went to Europe and entered into conferences on the debts, the official statements were deceptive. They assume that the debts will be discussed by Mr. Stimson while in Europe; and that the discussions will be in utter disregard of the formally taken position of Congress against the transfer of the debts to the American taxpayers.

However, it does not matter what Mr. Stimson may agree to; Europe should know by this time that we have no autocracy in America; that it has possibly overestimated the power of money in imposing policies upon the American people which are to their disadvantage; and that any agreement that Mr. Stimson may make will be utterly worthless when it reaches Congress for its consent.

Baruch Opposes Debt "Cancellation"

Bernard M. Baruch is not a demagogue. He is a businessman and financier with more vision and a keener sense of public rights than the average. He is not a baiter of Europe; he understands her problems, and, no doubt, sympathizes with them. But he also understands the problems of the American taxpayer. And he has just taken his position four-square against the dishonesty called "cancellation of the debts." He says:

"I am opposed to 'cancellation' on our part. In the first place our government could only cancel its assets, i. e., what the Allies owe us—but could not or would not cancel its liabilities which are owed to its own Liberty bondholders. Therefore, there could be no cancellation."

As we have said from the beginning, the word "cancellation" is a tricky and dishonest word meant for the deception of the intended victims.

Debtor Nations Are Able to Pay

It is not true that all the debtor nations are unwilling to pay their debts. It is true that some of the heaviest debtors that do not want to pay are able to pay. But all are perfectly willing for Americans to assume their debts. That is human nature. We are all quite willing for some one else to insist on the privilege of paying our debts.

He points out that no great nation can afford to default entirely. We have some pensmen of the international bankers who threaten us with this, and with the implication that there would be nothing dishonorable in the defaulters. But Baruch reminds us and them:

"If some choose to default, the consequences of such action will be harmful to their credit and prestige and will hurt them in international trade. The effect of the defaults would be to drive to the United States international trade which defaulting countries will no longer be able to finance because people will no longer trust them. Defaulting nations will be somewhat in the position of Russia, which must pay exorbitant and uneconomic rates of interest on foreign credits."

And of that, we may be sure, the debtor nations are not unmindful.

Urges That Debts Be Paid in Goods

Mr. Baruch suggests the possibility of taking part of the debt in cash and part in commodities of an imperishable nature. These are now at unprecedentedly low price levels; and if held, say five years, could be sold to advantage. There are nations that are willing and anxious to meet their obligations in this way. Thus there are ways in which, even under existing conditions, the obligations may be met.

Of course, they may not be met at all if Americans insist on the privilege of paying the debts of other peoples. Just why at the moment we are putting the heaviest tax burdens in years upon our own people, these people should actually contend for the privilege of adding billions more to their own taxes, only the pensmen of the international bankers can explain.

Tariff Barriers Hamper World Trade

The debtor nations are all suffering in their capacity to pay because tariff barriers are destroying international trade. These barriers have been raised in retaliation against the Grundy act we passed under the Presidential lash. One way to restore the debtor's capacity to pay, and at the same time restore prosperity to this country, is to reduce these Chinese walls. And both the House and Senate bills now passed ask the President to call an international economic conference with this in view. There is a powerful demand for just this thing from business men in this country. All economists of consequence favor it.

The House and Senate bills both take from the President the power to raise and lower tariff taxes by 50 per cent. The consuming public knows precisely what that has meant. Mr. Coolidge pigeonholed a recommendation of the Tariff Commission to reduce the rate on sugar in the interest of the consumers and gave a 50 per cent increase to pig iron!

But the two bills differ in this: under the House bill the President may change the tariff rates provided there is no veto by Congress within 60 days; the Senate bill provides that there can be no increase without act of Congress. The Senate meets the objection that its plan would mean opening up the whole tariff question each time with a provision that the proposition submitted is not to be open to amendments.

And the Senate adopted Senator Norris' provision that provides a suspension of duties that "sustain monopolies"—and in heaven's name, why not?

No Prosperity Without Foreign Trade

It is assumed that Mr. Hoover will veto any bill that may be agreed upon in conference. He should be given the opportunity. We had precisely the same situation in 1911-12. Then, as now, the House was Democratic, the Senate, Republican. Then, as now, progressive Republicans in the Senate voted with the Democrats to frame a bill. Then, as now, the presidential veto was threatened. Mr. Taft thus acted. And the issue was made.

There never will be prosperity here until foreign trade is restored; it never will be restored until the tariff is changed to permit international trade; and it never will be changed so long as Mr. Hoover is in the White House.
